Family Of Jesus Covers World

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

He was a man, surely, complete manhood, an individual of history, "made like his brethren in every respect," Scripture says, with a flock of assorted relatives — skeptics, allies, the disenchanted, the solicitous.

But he also asserted a larger lineage, of profounder roots and vaster progeny. "Before Abraham, I am . . . I and the Father are one." And he claimed a universal succession. "I am the vine, you are the branches."

It was an immense, strange and comprehensive heritage. Although he was a thoroughgoing man of the earth, of one time, one place, one group, there also was an aura of mystery about him, his singular drive, his enigmatic sayings, his utter commitment to others.

"Bar Nasa," he called himself, the "Son of Man." But also, "Bar Eloah," the "Son of God."

A puzzled pragmatic apostle, Philip, wanted some tangible evidence, a spectacular display. "Lord, show us the Father, and we shall be satisfied."

The request startled Jesus somewhat, took him aback. "Have I been with you so long, and yet you do not know me, Philip? He who has seen me has seen the Father. Believe me that I am in the Father and the Father in me."

Some sensational demonstration there, some gradiose exhibition, might have stirred momentary excitement, but such fleeting response was not the kind of mark Jesus imbedded in men.

He spawned a strain that lasted, spread and embraced a world. "For in Christ Jesus you are all sons of God, through faith," the apostle Paul wrote. "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus. And if you are Christ's then you are Abraham's offspring, heirs according to the promise."

It was a big family, an inclusive household.

It was anchored in mankind's common nature, which Christ took on, becoming an integral part of it. Since he also is identified fully with God as well as man, it is held that he infused a revitalizing kinship with the divine into the mutual human stream.

In the Biblical portrayal, the human race had marred its couplings with its Creator, had lost communion with its ennobling origins, but Jesus is seen as the unflawed representative of the entire race, restoring Godliness to it.

Scripture also sees an even wider, cosmic relationship, material and spiritual, temporal and timeless. "He was before all things and in him all things hold together," says St. Paul. "God was in Christ reconciling the world to himself."

"For he has made known to us in all wisdom and insight the mystery of his will, according to his purpose which he set forth in Christ as a plan for the fullness of time, to unite all things on earth."

That unifying aspect was a central force in Christ — the drawing together, the harmonizing and rejoining of all the fractured segments of men — the broken personalities, the economic imbalances, the divided nations and races, the lost love.

And it was love that he incarnated and dispensed as the animating, binding tie.

"A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another," Jesus said. "As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you. Abide in my love."

Armed with that mightiest of forces, Christ is regarded as having initiated some total re-creating process in creation, but he directed his prime concern to individual persons, as if each summed up the pain and need of all.

"Come to me, all who labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest," he said. And that included the wretches who had strayed and squandered his substance but then came home, as related in the story of the prodigal son. "Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you," the young man cried. "I am no longer worthy to be called your son."

But Jesus ordained a hospitable house, a generous, merciful reception for the runaway returned.

Romney Hears Arab Refugees

ALLENBY BRIDGE, Jordan (AP) — Walking between rows of American tents, Michigan Gov. George Romney Friday got a close view of one of the muddy refugee camps in Jordan that house an estimated 575,000 people.

Romney interviewed camp doctors, crawled into a refugee tent and squatted on the ground with a barefoot woman and her six children and questioned a woman baking bread in a mud oven.

He listened as refugee after refugee told him, "We want to go home." In reply he said, "I was a refugee when I was five years old." He explained his family was driven out of Mexico on 48 hours notice.

At the Ghor Nimrin camp near the bridge—which separates Jordan from Jordanian soil occupied by Israel—Romney chatted with the crowd and bought four postcards, two of them showing religious shrines now in Israeli hands. When the Arab merchant refused his money, the governor gave him a ballpark pen.

The Republican presidential hopeful visited the Jerich camp in Israeli-held territory from which many of the refugees had fled. There, he said, he had seen "empty homes and empty spaces. . . . There are only 3,000 people living in an area where 30,000 could live."

Today Romney holds talks with Premier Bahjat Talhouni and Jordan's King Hussein before flying to Southeast Asia. He talked with Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and other Israeli officials Friday.

Christmas Travel Jams Air, Bus, Train Routes

By The Associated Press
Holiday travelers were on the move again today crowding the nation's highways and jamming into bus, train and airline terminals to get transportation home for Christmas.

The first peak push came Friday afternoon when millions of Americans got off work, gathered their families and headed "back home for Christmas with grandma," in the words of one airline agent.

While cold, clear weather covered most of the country today providing dry roads for motorists, the National Safety Council estimated 625 to 725 persons would die in traffic accidents before midnight Monday.

McCarthy Asks FCC To Order Radio-TV Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffed by the major networks, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is asking the government to insure he gets radio and television time to answer statements by President Johnson.

The Minnesota Democrat, who says he'll challenge Johnson in several Democratic presidential primaries next year, asked Friday that the Federal Communications Commission order NBC, CBS and ABC to provide him air time.

His FCC appeal came shortly after ABC and NBC, following an earlier stand by CBS, rejected McCarthy's request for equal time to answer President Johnson's televised assertion Tuesday that the Minnesotan was working with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in a quest for the nomination.

Both McCarthy and Kennedy have repeatedly denied they're allied in an effort to oust Johnson.

The networks said McCarthy isn't entitled to equal time under laws governing broadcasting because Johnson is not a declared candidate for re-election.

Saying Johnson won't run next year denies "a fact which every American child knows," said Blair Clark, McCarthy's campaign manager, in the appeal to the FCC.

"The people of the country have the right to know," Clark continued, "whether the FCC is going to permit a President who is obviously a candidate for re-election to use the powerful network TV and radio facilities without a right of response by other announced candidates."

Clark said the FCC should either order the networks to give McCarthy equal time or hold a hearing on the issue.

Johnson was interviewed by correspondents from all three networks, and all three carried the pre-taped, hour-long show in prime night time.

Killed In Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Michigan men were among 26 U.S. servicemen reported killed in action in Vietnam. They were Army Spec. 4 Morris G. McPhail, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McPhail of Detroit, and Army Pfc. Barry A. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith A. Thompson of rural Lake.

Living Costs Up Except On Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're feeling a financial pinch these days the Christmas gift-giving tradition shouldn't catch all the blame—just about all the family goods and services Americans buy have jumped in cost.

The Labor Department reported Friday an increase of three-tenths of one per cent in living costs during November, and pointed to signs more of the same can be expected this month.

Only a drop of three-tenths of one per cent in grocery prices staved off a bigger increase in November and appeared likely to prevent this year's over-all jump from surpassing last year's 3.3 per cent annual rate, highest in 10 years.

The November figures pushed to 117.8 the government's consumer price index. That means it costs $11.78 to buy products and services that cost Americans $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, reported a one-tenth of one per cent jump in wholesale prices last month. That increase is expected to show up soon in retail prices.

Approaching Truce Slows Ground War

SAIGON (AP) — With holiday truce periods only hours away, ground fighting in the Vietnam war sputtered almost to a halt today and U.S. fighting men received a surprise Christmas season visitor—President Johnson.

The guerrillas declared they would stop fighting at 1 a.m. Sunday (noon today EST). The South Vietnamese government's announced 24-hour truce, to be observed by the 475,000 or so U.S. troops in Vietnam, begins at 6 p.m. Sunday (5 a.m. EST).

Air raids kept up, meanwhile. Aiming at suspected Red artillery positions and supply lines northeast of the U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien, the high-altitude, eight-engine B52s returned to the demilitarized zone for the second straight day despite the threat of SAM missiles. The North Vietnamese fired three SAMs at B52s Wednesday night but the big bombers escaped, the U.S. Command said.

Two Planes Lost

The command reported two Navy fighter-bombers were shot down by ground fire Friday while flying missions over North Vietnam and both pilots are missing.

The locations were not revealed but among Navy pilot's targets Friday were the northern area of the demilitarized zone and a cargo transfer point near Thanh Hoa, about 80 miles south of Hanoi.

One of the planes was an A7 Corsair II—the first new attack bomber to be shot down since the model went into combat earlier this month.

The two fighter-bombers brought to 789 the announced number of U.S. plane losses over North Vietnam.

Strike Airlift

The northeast monsoon restricted American air strikes over North Vietnam Friday, but Air Force pilots guided by radar hit Kep Airfield 98 miles northwest of Hanoi and a railroad yard 43 miles northwest of the North Vietnamese capital.

Marine pilots flying all-weather A6 intruders attacked the Yen Bai storage area 64 miles northwest of Hanoi and another supply point 15 miles northwest of Haiphong while Navy planes bombed military installations in the North Vietnamese panhandle.

American air power was expected to be grounded during the truce period, the first time it has been held back from action since the cease-fire on Buddha's birthday last May.

Cable TV Has Legal Static

NEW YORK (AP) — In the northwest corner of New Mexico, 50 miles from the nearest television station, residents of Farmington have a choice of five television channels.

By wire and microwave signals from four stations in Albuquerque and one in Durango, Colo., programs are relayed to 4,000 sets in Farmington through CATV—Community Antenna Television.

CATV often means the difference between good television reception and poor reception—or even none at all—in nearly 2,000 communities.

But even as CATV has brought television to three million homes, it has brought down the wrath of the broadcasters. CATV is plainly television's unloved stepchild.

The stations see the CATV operators as pirating programs and selling them to viewers at charges that average $5 a month.

The issues have boiled up into two cases now before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The first case concerns the assertion by the Federal Communications Commission—the agency that regulates broadcasting—that it has authority over CATV, an authority that the commission first asserted in April 1965, 15 years after the industry came into existence.

Tells Soldiers Enemy Cannot Win In Vietnam

ROME (AP) — President Johnson headed today for an audience with Pope Paul VI, informed sources said, after telling American fighting men in Vietnam, "What you have done, will not have been in vain."

Johnson told the troops at the big Cam Ranh Bay base, "The enemy cannot win, now, in Vietnam. You have seen to that."

Now, reports in Rome and Washington said, he wanted to explain personally to the Pope why the United States is pursuing its course in Vietnam. The pontiff issued a fresh call Friday for the United States to suspend bombing of North Vietnam and for the Communists "to give a sign of serious will for peace."

Change Possible

Word of Johnson's planned visit to the Pope came from both Italian and American government sources in Rome. Both, however, said that though the arrival was scheduled it was always possible Johnson might change his plans at the last moment.

The American Embassy and the Vatican have been going ahead with plans on the assumption that the Johnson visit, was set and Italian Communists prepared to stage anti-American demonstrations.

An informed source in Madrid said Johnson's plane would refuel and he would spend tonight there on his way home. What began as a trip to memorial rites in Australia for Prime Minister Harold E. Holt, who has been given up for drowned, was turning into an around the world flight.

First World Flight

Washington sources believe this would be the first continuous around the world flight made by a President while in office. They said several, including Ulysses S. Grant, have traveled around the world but not while in office.

Leaving Australia, Johnson winged into the sprawling U.S. Air Force base at Khorat, Thailand, Friday, to visit airmen, snatched four hours sleep, touched down at Cam Ranh for 1 1/2 hours and bounded on.

In Rome, a Vatican spokesman indicated the President was coming but declined to say the visit was a certainty.

Explain Policy

Pope Paul had issued a fresh call Friday for the United States to suspend bombing North Vietnam and for the Communists "to give a sign of serious will for peace." Reports from Rome and Washington said Johnson wanted to explain personally to Pope Paul why the United States is pursuing its course in Vietnam.

At Cam Ranh Bay—site of a bustling new harbor on the South China Sea and one of the most secure U.S. bases in South Vietnam—the President told 2,500 fighting men they are discharging U.S. responsibilities in Asia "with blood and sweat and bravery."

"It's not the shortest route back to the White House," he told them, "but because it is almost Christmas and because my spirit would be here with you anyway, I had to come."

"I wish I could have brought you something more than just the old man himself . . . some tangible symbol of the pride people feel in you back home."

A Time For Testing

The President added that he brought "the assurance of what you have fought to achieve: The enemy cannot win now in Vietnam. He can harass, he can terrorize, he can inflict casualties, while taking far greater losses himself. But he cannot win. You have seen to that."

This Christmas, he said, "comes a time for testing for

Delta Is Included:Food Stamps To Aid Marginal In 5 U. P. Counties

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman today designated an additional 172 counties in 10 Midwest states to receive the food stamp program, including Delta, Dickinson, Alger, Luce and Schoolcraft in the Upper Peninsula.

Presently, 286 Midwest areas are taking part in the program, with over 635,000 persons receiving its benefits.

"Not only does the food stamp program help low-income families eat better, but their added food-buying power helps the economy of the entire area," said Freeman. "And it improves the opportunity for producers to earn the incomes necessary to keep them supplying the ample food this Nation needs."

The food stamp program enables eligible low-income families to increase their food purchasing power by investing their own money in food coupons worth more than they pay. The coupons are spent like cash at retail food outlets authorized under the program.

Dates when the new areas will begin issuing food stamp coupons to low-income persons will be announced locally, after Consumers & Marketing Service personnel and state welfare officials have planned a timetable for the program.

These procedures include familiarizing caseworkers with food stamp program objectives and procedures, arranging for coupon issuance, certifying needy families as eligible for the program, and meeting with retail grocers and food wholesalers to assure their understanding of the program and their role before being authorized to accept and redeem the federal food coupons.

Two Deltans Get Wayne Degrees

President William R. Keast awarded degrees to 1977 candidates at Wayne State University's commencement exercises Dec. 19 at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

As part of the University's Centennial celebration all those receiving degrees have been designated Centennial graduates.

Graduates from this area include: Myron John Gulseth, Bay View, Gladstone. Bachelor of Arts degree; and J. Margaret Oberg, Rapid River, Master of Education degree.

Letters To The PressAIRPORT

In reference to the discussion of the Escanaba Municipal Airport that took place during the council meeting of Dec. 21, I offer my sincere congratulations and support to Councilman Chase for his endeavors of giving representation to the council for the people. Of all the councilmen, Councilman Chase is the only one who has shown true concern for our airport.

Whenever progress of any area of growth of our fair city and county could possibly be hampered by any individual or individuals is brought into light by concerned members of the public—we are to immediately reward those who possibly retard our progress or do we investigate matters thoroughly before continuing on the same path.

Councilman Chase has shown the ability to look ahead before he leaps when he took his stand of voting no on the airport issue. Are there any possibilities that the progress of the area airport is being hampered by our present airport manager? Maybe in another year we will find out.

Fire Kills Caller

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — "I'm on fire," the voice on the telephone told the fire department.

Then the caller dropped the phone without saying where he was.

By the time firemen had traced the call to an old frame apartment building Friday, they found Vernon Sharum, 57, dead. The fire was believed to have been started by a faulty electric extension cord.

Municipal Questions:Invisible Salt, Airport Carpet Among Problems

There's a never-ending confrontation by the City Council and the city administration with municipal problems, and currently the questions include carpeting the airport terminal and convincing motorists that salt is being used for ice control on city streets.

City Manager George Harvey noted the importance — safety on one hand, cost on the other — of the questions in his report to the City Council.

The city is going to a straight chemical of ice on the streets this year, instead of using salt and sand mixture, the manager said.

"We are using pure salt which does a much better job as far as removing the ice, than the combination did. Salt is also good an abrasive as sand."

"We do get numerous complaints that the sander has gone by and nothing is coming out of it," Harvey added. "The reason for this, of course, is that the salt is the same color as the snow."

Besides the "invisible salt" problem, the Council is informed by the manager that construction of the new airport terminal buildings includes the question whether carpeting rather than tile might be more suitable for a floor covering.

"There has been some discussion on the relative merit of carpeting over tile in the airport terminal building," Harvey reports. "This has been proposed by the Aeronautics Commission staff; however, I have been reluctant to accept this."

To help in arriving at a decision, the manager is obtaining information from Grand Rapids, where the City Council recently accepted a recommendation from its administration on the use of carpeting throughout the city hall. When the information is received from Grand Rapids and analyzed, the city will be in a better position to discuss the subject with the Aeronautics staff, Harvey explained.

The manager also reported that he has received information from Congressman Phil Ruppe that "it looks very good" for federal funds for the airport taxiway and aprons. These items had been deleted by the FAA and are now (hopefully) being reinstated for federal funding.

Construction of the terminal building is now under way, financed by state and local funds. Should the taxiway and apron not be funded, there would be a period of time when planes would be unable to approach the new terminal.

In other city affairs, Harvey advises the Council that progress is being made in the acquisition of properties which must be removed to establish the downtown public parking lot.

Owners of commercial properties in the area and business people who would benefit are contributing to the cost of acquiring the area. Of the total amount pledged—$54,065—the amount collected so far is $14,240 or 26 per cent, Harvey reported.

The old buildings that are being razed to clear the parking area were not of sufficient value to be moved. The city engineer doubts they would meet the city building code, and they are therefore being dismantled, Harvey said.

White Pine And Union Bargaining

R. C. Cole, president of White Pine Copper Co., in a letter written on Thursday from Chicago to employees of the struck Ontonagon County mining firm, reported that union and management bargaining teams were "engaged with the mediators in trying to bring an end to the work stoppage."

"It is difficult to predict when we will be back at work," wrote Cole in the latest of his series of letters to employees.

"I know you share our hope that the strike will soon be over, and that we may look forward to a 1968 full of promise and growth. May I wish you and your family a happy holiday season under these circumstances."

The White Pine strike started Sept. 1 after mine labor unions led by the United Steelworkers had already struck the biggest firms in the nation's copper industry. The national industry has been shut down for more than five months by the strike, which has aimed at nationwide bargaining for copper mining labor. White Pine had been unable to get the Steelworkers to the bargaining table, even with an offer of retroactive benefits.

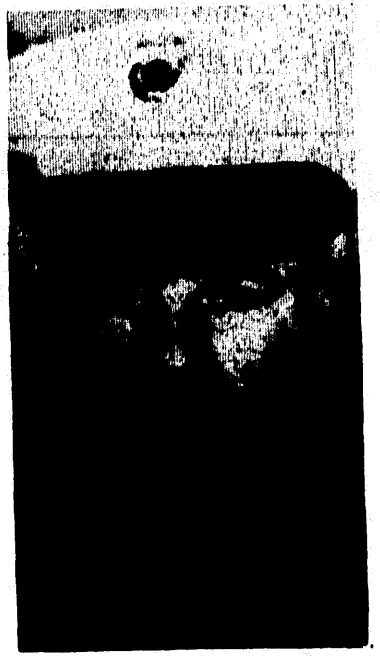

FBI Technique Gets Violators

CHICAGO (AP) — The city of Chicago has borrowed a technique from the FBI to help crack down on chronic parking violators who let tickets stockpile. A list of the "10 most wanted parking violators" is compiled and made public with arrest warrants issued.

Result: an attractive young model and North Side businessman were fined a total of $2,220 after they pleaded guilty to collecting a total of 148 parking tickets in 1966.

FOUR PERSONS WERE KILLED when these two cars collided head-on about six miles east of Iron River Thursday afternoon. Three of the victims, Michael R. Adriansen, 19, of Iron River, Patricia Zimmer, 19, of Ontonagon, and Marlene Clemens, 19, of Ironwood, were riding in the car shown at the top, a 1964 Plymouth sedan. Ernestine Otto, 18, of Iron River, driver of the second car, a 1964 Pontiac, died Friday morning as a result of injuries suffered in the crash. The accident happened about 2:55 p. m. Thursday. Five other young women were hospitalized at Stambaugh with injuries from the accident. (Iron Mountain News Photo)

Death Claims Elmer Boal

MANISTIQUE — Elmer Boal, 79, of 341 Chippewa, Manistique, died this morning at the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital. He was born March 1, 1888, in Canada and was the retired Manistique fire chief. He had been employed by the fire department for 31 years. Mr. Boal was a member of the First Methodist Church.

He is survived by his widow, Nancy, two sons, Stewart of Pickford and Donald of Wau-bay, S. D.; one daughter, Mrs. Bernard Rogers of Gulliver; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Donald McPhail of Manistique; two stepsons, William Bauman of Manistique; and Arthur of Grand Rapids; one brother, Fred in Canada and 17 grandchildren.

Friends may call at the Kefauver and Jackson Funeral Home from 7 to 9:30 p. m. Monday and complete funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the funeral home. Rev. W. Kelsey will officiate.

Mistake In Name

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Bureau of Unemployment Compensation made just one mistake Friday when it re-named people about its new name.

As of Jan. 1, the name will be Bureau of Employment Services, officials said—shortly after issuing a news release giving the name as Bureau of Employment Security.

Funeral Services For Frank Drake Held At Green Bay

GREEN BAY—Funeral services for Frank M. Drake, 43, of Green Bay, son of the late Mrs. Adele Drake of Escanaba, were held Wednesday at the Coad Funeral Home. Burial was in Fort Howard Cemetery.

Mr. Drake died suddenly of a heart attack last Saturday at Ishpeming. He was a trainman and conductor for the Chicago & North Western Railway and was well known in the Escanaba area.

He was a member of the Eagles Club and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Survivors include his wife, the former Mary Jane Collins; two brothers, Stanley and Harry, both of Chicago; and one sister, Ruth Adele Drake of Escanaba who is a teacher in Mount Clemens.

Congress Crossed Up The Senator

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The unpredictability of congressional adjournment is underlined by a Christmas greeting to Montanans from Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.

The note says in part, "Unfortunately, this year Congress will stay in session until the end of the year and we will be unable to return home. So Donna (Mrs. Metcalf) and I will be spending a quiet Christmas here in Washington."

Congress adjourned Dec. 16.

Raymond Morin Dies Suddenly

Raymond L. Morin, 55, of 1212 2nd Ave. N. was dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital at 12:50 p. m. Friday. He was born in Escanaba on April 23, 1912 and had resided here all of his life.

Mr. Morin was employed as a buyer for the Birds Eye Veneer Co. and was a member of the Bethany Lutheran Church.

He is survived by his widow, the former Margaret Nyquist; two daughters, Mrs. Al (Barbara) Lord of Ironwood and Mrs. David (Sandra) Dahlquist of Escanaba; one son, Thomas, of Escanaba and one grandchild; his father, Joseph W. Morin of Escanaba; two brothers, Joseph of Arlington, Va. and Stanley of Milwaukee; three sisters, Mrs. Joseph Cousineau, Mrs. James Doran and Mrs. Herbert Green all of Escanaba.

Friends may call at the Anderson Funeral Home from 6 to 9 p. m. Monday and complete funeral services will be conducted at 11 a. m. Tuesday from the funeral home chapel. Rev. Walfred E. Nelson will officiate and burial will be in Lakeview Cemetery.

Briefly Told

Robert LeMire Jr., 620 5th Ave. S., and Betty JoAnn Majestic, 614 Ludington St., applied for a marriage license at the county clerk's office.

A Christmas Eve service will be held at 10:30 p. m. Sunday at the Salvation Army headquarters. Sunday School will be at 10 a. m. Sunday and the worship service at 11 a. m.

William Potvin, 19, and Marvin Mosier, 18, both of Rapid River, were reported in good condition today at St. Francis Hospital. Both were injured in a traffic accident early Friday morning. Potvin has injuries to his left arm and chest and Mosier head lacerations.

An Escanaba boy, 16, is being held in the Delta County jail pending his appearance in Juvenile Court to answer to a charge of reckless driving. City police reported observing the car going at high speed on Ludington St. at 10:44 p. m. Friday. In his effort to elude police the boy drove through stop signs at high speed and went more than 120 miles an hour south on Highway M-35 before he was halted seven miles south of the city, officers reported.

Pat Morin, 25, of 227 N. 9th St., Escanaba, today is in a hospital at K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base where he is being treated for injuries suffered in an Escanaba early Friday. He is in the Air Force service and was transferred to the military hospital from St. Francis Hospital. Escanaba police said that the man who beat Morin and broke his nose has been identified, but Morin has refused to sign a complaint against him.

Delta To Boost Dog Controls

Dogs running loose in Delta County are going to be in for more trouble in 1968.

Effective Jan. 1, the county's dog warden no longer will be a deputy sheriff. Instead, he'll be the director of a new county department.

The Board of Supervisors, responding to the constant problem of dog control in the county, took the action setting up the new Dog Warden department at a recent meeting. Removing the dog warden from the responsibilities of a deputy sheriff will allow full-time to be devoted to dog control work. Hector Larsen has handled most of the county dog control assignments among his duties as a sheriff's deputy.

The Personnel Relations committee of the Board of Supervisors will consider applicants for the new position in interviews scheduled for 4 p. m. Wednesday, Dec. 27, at the Delta County Building. The committee indicated it hopes to make an appointment for the new position by the first of the year.

Details will be announced after Christmas, the spokesman added.

our country. This time it is a test of will: Whether we have the vision and the steady hand to see us through a grave challenge to freedom.

"I can bring you something more," he added, "news of a victory that is being won not on a battlefield but in cities and villages all over Asia. It is a victory of confidence. Because of what you and our allies are doing here, men throughout Asia are beginning to feel confident that the future belongs to them—to those who love peace."

Sees Heads Of State

Johnson had conferred with the heads of state of four Vietnam allies who flew to Australia for the Holt service. These were South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu, South Korea's President Chung Hee Park, New Zealand Prime Minister Keith Holyoake and Premier Thanom Kittikachorn of Thailand.

The President also received assurances from Australia's interim prime minister, John McEwen, that Holt's death will not change Australia's pro-American Vietnam policy.

The weather at Cam Ranh was crisp and bright with a thin haze softening the dull brown surrounding mountains as the blue and white Air Force One touched down and taxied up to where all the top U.S. and South Vietnam military officials waited.

Mrs. H. Shepeck Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Hubert H. Shepeck, 1801 Lake Shore Drive, died suddenly in her home this morning. She had been in ill health for a year, but her death was unexpected.

Funeral services are to be held in St. Joseph's Catholic Church at 9 a. m. Wednesday and friends may call at the Boyce Funeral Home after 3:30 p. m. on Tuesday.

The former Nona Robertson is survived by her husband, a retired industrialist.

St. Anne's Choir To Sing Concert

A concert of Christmas songs and carols will be presented by the St. Anne's Church Choir at 11:30 p. m. Sunday before the traditional Christmas Eve Midnight mass.

Director of the choir is Mrs. George A. Peterson. Organist is Mrs. Betty Lundin.

Soloists to be featured on the program include: Rose Coplan, Joy Moran, Judy Wessel, Mary Snyder, Earl Delforge, Diane Coplan, Harold Olson, and Richard Puglisi.

Blood Bank Near Quota

The Red Cross blood bank was only 47 units short of the 307 quota for Delta County in the three-day procurement clinic that ended Friday, the Red Cross reports.

Red Cross Blood Procurement Chairman Mrs. Edward Olsen said the better than two-thirds response was "very encouraging." Collected were 280 units of the 307 quota, including:

Gladstone 61 units on Wednesday, Escanaba 127 units on Thursday and 72 units on Friday.

Six gallon donors recognized at the December clinic were Robert G. Anderson, Richard Meindl and Wayne Courier of Escanaba.

Five-gallon records were achieved by Mrs. Richard Meindl of Escanaba and Donald Kickbusch of Cornwell; four-gallon donor was Francis Trombley of Rock, and a three-gallon donor was Lawrence Chouinard of Gladstone.

Yule Commerce Called Healthy

ANN ARBOR—"I like the commercialism of Christmas," says University of Michigan psychologist James V. McConnell.

Each year at this time psychologists and national leaders across the country bemoan the loss of the "traditional, Christian holiday spirit." But, according to McConnell, "commercialism is a natural outgrowth of a healthy, advanced economy."

McConnell is a professor of psychology and a staff member of U-M's Mental Health Research Institute, where he is best known for his memory-transfer research in flatworms. He is also editor of the Journal of Biological Psychology and of the Worm Runner's Digest, an internationally circulated magazine devoted to scientific satire.

"Because this economy enables society to support scientific research, I'm all for it," the professor explains.

"Furthermore because many of us are inarticulate, we need a formalized ritual like Christmas to express our feelings and affections."

What about the expenses which drive many a breadwinner into bankruptcy?

"A gift, if meaningful, should be beyond one's means—almost to the point of bankruptcy," McConnell says.

"If we are inarticulate, gift buying is the price we pay for not giving little things all year long."

"In spite of all our holidays, Christmas is the only one that makes it easy to find a way to say 'I love you' to those dearest to us. If we didn't have Christmas, someone would invent an occasion for large gift-giving."

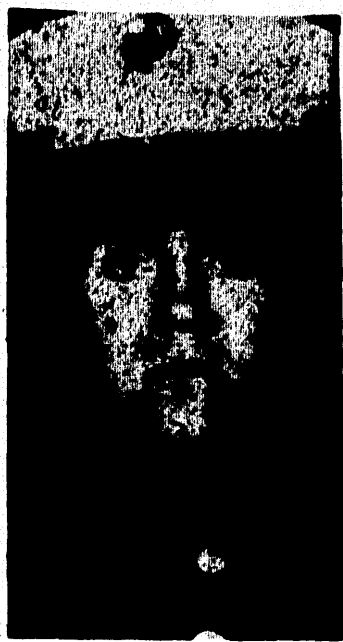

"A mink coat is much cheaper than an analyst's couch."

But what about the religious significance of the holiday?

"I'm happy it's becoming nonsectarian. A human exchange of warmth is greater than any single religious creed."

But surely we needn't attach so much significance to Santa Claus?

"Santa Claus is the embodiment of the spirit of giving. We can use this symbol to teach an objective reward system for doing good. This is a much more humane way to train children than the threat of punishment."

Father Of Quads Plus Six Says, 'It's Hectic'

FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP) — There's Rick who is 9, Debbie 8, Karen 6, Craig 5, Brenda 4, Kevin 2, and Brian, Mark, Paul and Dwayne. The last four members of the Fahrenkrog family will all be four months old on Christmas Day.

"My friends always ask how I can stand it," Ruth Fahrenkrog, 34, said, "but the babies don't bother me at all. It's the older ones, when they fight, that gets me."

The quads were born Aug. 25 in a St. Louis hospital, but the fact that all four were boys provided the only surprise. Doctors had told Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fahrenkrog they could expect four.

"It's been hectic," the husband and father said, "but it's generally quiet between 11 o'clock and five in the morning," Fahrenkrog, an engineer for a St. Louis architectural firm, then added: "After all that's pretty good with 10 kids."

As for Christmas shopping, "Well that's been a two-shift affair," said Mrs. Fahrenkrog.

"Yes," said the 37-year-old father, "she's done the shopping and I've picked up the bills."

Brian, Mark, Paul and Dwayne, normally mentioned in their order of birth, have all been pronounced healthy by the family doctor. The attending physician at birth said the boys were about average for premature babies.

Altogether the quads weighed a total of just under 19 pounds at birth.

The boys are not identical and Mrs. Fahrenkrog can tell them apart at a glance. But their father admits to a bit of a recognition problem.

The Fahrenkrogs reside in a five-room, brick-faced bungalow in this St. Louis suburb. The father said there is no room for expansion at their present home.

"I guess we're looking for a dormitory," he added.

Choir To Sing On TV Sunday

The Evangelical Covenant Church Choir of Gladstone will appear on station WLUC-TV on Sunday from 4 to 4:30 p.m., directed by Mrs. Clifford Goodman, and accompanied by Mrs. Carl Olson.

For the second successive year the Gladstone State Savings Bank, directed by Walter Olson, president, will sponsor the appearance of the local choir.

Featured in the cantata will be Mrs. Loren Anderson, Mrs. Jerrold Becvar, Mrs. Robert Olson, Rev. James R. Swan, pastor of the Covenant Church of Escanaba, and Noble Swenson, Rev. Loren E. Anderson is the pastor of the local congregation.

Patricia Hendrickson, Steven Hurthibise Wed

Miss Patricia Ann Hendrickson of Gladstone became the bride of Lt. Steven Andrew Hurthibise of Escanaba during a double ring ceremony performed today, Dec. 23 at All Saints Catholic Church in Gladstone. Officiating at the nuptials at 12 noon was the Msgr. Matt LaViolette. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hendrickson of 620 Dakota Ave., Gladstone and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hurthibise of 2237 18th Ave. S., Escanaba.

Lace Motifs
The bride chose for her wedding a white floor length arched Empire gown accented with Venice lace motifs on the bodice and sleeves and detailed with a removable wateau chapel train with a lace trimmed scalloped hem.

A triple forward bow of peau and lace secured her bouffant veil of French illusion and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis accented with ivy.

Maid of honor for her sister was Marie Hendrickson and she was attired in a ruby red velvet princess style gown fashioned with a scoop neckline and puff sleeves. A matching rose headpiece and veil completed her attire and she carried red peppermint carnations accented with holly.

Mother's Attire

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hendrickson wore an ivory beige dress with matching accessories and Mrs. Hurthibise chose a navy blue and white dress with matching accessories. Both mothers were presented orchid corsages.

The wedding reception is being held this afternoon and evening at the Eagles Club in Escanaba.

The couple will honeymoon enroute to Virginia where they will make their home.

The bride is a 1966 graduate of Gladstone High School and Mr. Hurthibise graduated in 1966 from Holy Name High School.

Study Group

The Cornell Home Study Group held their annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Robert Thompson recently. The home was gaily decorated in the Christmas theme. Games were played and prizes awarded to the Mesdames Richard Jungles, Howard Scheuren and Mrs. Thompson. A gift exchange was also held. Lunch was served by the hostess. Attending were the Mesdames Alfred Dahl Sr. and Jr., Ray Schultz, Morton Scheuren, Harold and William Woodard, Wilfred Mattison, Orville Wolfe and Mary Becklund.

Christmas Party

A Christmas party sponsored by the Cornell Lions and the Cornell PTC was held at the town hall on Tuesday evening. Guests enjoyed songs and skits presented by the school children. The arrival of Santa Claus and the presentation of gifts was the highlight of the evening for the youngsters. A large Christmas tree adorned the hall. Ice cream and cake was served to the guests at the close of the program.

Pvt. Dennis Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlson, is spending a two week leave with his parents. Pvt. Carlson just finished his basic training at Ft. Campbell, Ky. and will go to Oklahoma at the end of his leave. Another son, Gary, who is in the Air Force, has just arrived in the Philippines, where he will continue his duties.

Miss Linda Carlson has returned to Cornell to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlson. Miss Carlson has been working in Dayton, Ohio.

Members of the Cornell Methodist MYF enjoyed singing Christmas Carols for members of the community recently. The group also distributed Christmas cookies to several families.

Mrs. Robert E. LeMire Jr.

Elizabeth Majestic Wed To Robert E. LeMire Jr.

St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church in Rapid River was the setting today, Dec. 23 for the wedding of Elizabeth JoAnn child. Her only jewelry was a Majestic of Rte. 3 Rapid River and Robert Eugene LeMire Jr. of Escanaba.

The Rev. John V. Suhr officiated at the nuptial high mass and double ring ceremony at 12 noon. Red poinsettia plants adorned the church altars for the ceremony and white satin bows marked the family pews.

The bride placed a bouquet of blue and white pompons at the altar of the Blessed Virgin while the St. Charles Choir sang traditional wedding music. Organist for the service was Mrs. Richard Elegreet.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Majestic of Rte. 3 Rapid River and parents of the bridegroom are Attorney and Mrs. Robert E. LeMire Sr. of 620 S. 5th Ave. Altar boys at the service were Ivan S. Majestic Jr. of Palos Hills, Ill., nephew of the bride and Thomas J. LeMire, Escanaba, brother of the bridegroom.

Skimmer Gown

The bride chose an organza and lace skimmer gown fashioned with a modified scoop neckline trimmed with seed pearls and lace and long sleeves. The skirt and sleeves were trimmed with scalloped lace and satin trim. Her detachable fan train was held with a large bow. A double crown of Borealis and pearls secured her elbow length veil of nylon tulle net.

Communion Service Sunday At St. Stephen's

At 11 p. m. Christmas Eve, the traditional service of Holy Communion will be held in St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Escanaba.

Following the ancient Advent hymn, "O Come, O Come, Emmanuel", Layreader James Kent will begin the service with the Advent Psalm and Old Testament Lesson.

The transition of Advent to Christmas will then be made by the changing of altar hangings from purple to white and the processional hymn, "O Come, All Ye Faithful", will begin the Christmas Communion service.

At the offertory, Kenneth Thompson will sing "He Shall Feed His Flock", and the St. Stephen's Choir, directed by Mrs. Daniel Creten, will sing "O Thou That Tearest Good Tidings", both from "The Messiah". They will be accompanied by Mrs. Alton Mallmann, organist. During the communion, Miss Dawn Bunch will sing, "What Child Is This?" and she and Miss Janis Hall will sing "Silent Night".

The Rev. Ben F. Helmer, rector, will preach the Christmas sermon. On Christmas Day, Dec. 25, there will be a service of Holy Communion at 11 a. m. at St. Stephen's.

Trainees Make Yule Decorations For White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has received two wreaths made for the White House by a class of 12 formerly unemployed men who are being trained as nurses at a Manpower Training Center in Detroit.

The wreaths, hanging on the double front door of the White House, were presented to the First Lady on behalf of the trainees by Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner. Wirtz said the trainees decided on the project as an expression of gratitude for the opportunity they were given to learn a vocation.

Newspaper Want Ads are a big sell! One billion, twenty-one million was spent on classified ads last year . . . more than for all magazine advertising combined and more than 300 million more than radio advertising.

Sapphire Blue

They were attired in Sapphire blue A-line gowns in a georgette fabric styled with a round-neckline and full three quarter length pleated sleeves. They wore matching bow headpieces and satin slippers. Their white nylon lace wrist gloves and pearl button earrings were a gift of the bride. They carried round clusters of white carnations with Christmas ornaments of Sapphire blue and silver and long ribbon streamers.

Bestman for his brother was Michael LeMire of Escanaba and groomsmen were John R. Majestic of Crestwood, Ill., brother of the bride, and Michael Schroeder of Iron Mountain. Seating the guests were John Frenn of Madison Heights, Mich., and Terrill S. Jardi, of Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Majestic wore for her daughter's wedding a deep blue turquoise blue jacket dress trimmed with pearl buttons and matching accessories. Mrs. LeMire chose a geranium pink jacket dress also trimmed with jeweled buttons and matching accessories. Both mothers were presented white orchid corsages.

Reception
The wedding reception is being held this afternoon and evening at the Delta Supper Club. Assisting are Miss Virginia LeMire, Mrs. John R. Majestic, Miss Deanna Prokop, Mrs. Michael LeMire, Miss Jane LaCrosse, Miss Joanne Karasti and Miss Bonnie Majestic.

The rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Terrace Supper Club was hosted by Attorney and Mrs. Robert LeMire.

For their wedding trip to an undisclosed destination the bride will wear a green and white three piece suit with brown accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The newlyweds will be at home at 29440 Dequindre, Warren, Mich., Apt. 203 after Dec. 29.

The bride is a graduate of Rapid River High School and is employed at the Gustafson Oil Co. of Rapid River.

Mr. LeMire is a graduate of Holy Name High School and received his degree in business administration from the University of Notre Dame. He was affiliated with Beta Gamma Sigma and Beta Alpha Psi, national honor fraternities. He is presently attending the University of Detroit Law School.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. John R. Majestic of Crestwood, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Ivan S. Majestic, Palos Hills, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Majestic of Huron, Ohio and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Majestic of Chicago.

The Red Cross societies of Moslem nations use a red crescent on a white background for their flag.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT L. MAYRA of 1151 1st Ave. S. announce the engagement of their daughter, Carmen M., to Stanley A. Besonen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnie A. Besonen of Trout Creek. The bride-elect is a graduate of Escanaba Area High School and is a senior at Northern Michigan University. She is presently student teaching at Gladstone High School. Her fiancé is a history major at NMU and will graduate in June of 1968. No date has been set for the wedding. (Lee's Studio)

Holiday Concert In Daggett On Thursday

The Chapel and Handbell Choirs of the Moravian Church in Daggett will combine for an evening of Christmas music on Thursday, Dec. 28. The concert will be presented in the church sanctuary beginning at 8 p. m.

The Chapel Choir is under the direction of Miss Elaine Revall and the directors of the bell choir are Miss Jean Nelson and Miss Shirene Hirsch. Mrs. Morris Van Horn is accompanist for the group.

A special number on the program will be a handbell solo by Miss Shirene Hirsch. A coffee hour will follow the concert and the public is cordially invited to attend.

MSU Veterans Send Card To Westmoreland

EAST LANSING (AP) — A giant Christmas card—signed by some 17,000 Michigan State University students—is on its way to Southeast Asia today, addressed to Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of U.S. troops in Vietnam.

Members of the MSU Veterans Association mailed the card Wednesday after spending four days and six evenings collecting the signatures on campus.

They're hoping Westmoreland will spread the word that "We at Michigan State University wish all of our troops in Vietnam a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

A hinged cover, decorated by a commercial artist, encloses 66 sheets of legal-size paper containing that message and the signatures.

The card, sent air mail, cost $4.08 in postage.

Veterans Association President Tom Hansen said his group had no political reasons for sending the card. They just wanted to wish U.S. fighting men a Merry Christmas.

An estimated one-fourth of the 450 association members are Vietnam veterans.

Dear Heloise:

This is my solution to those messy containers we use to save cooking grease in.

I place a one- or two-pound coffee can inside an attractive three-pound coffee canister and replace the lid on the larger can.

This sets on my stove and when needed, I pour used grease into the smaller can inside. When the small can is full, I put a plastic lid on it and discard it.

By pouring fats into the inside can, I don't drip it on my stove nor does grease run down the side and mess up the bottom of the larger can.

'A-Bit-O' Christmas Cookery From Ireland

By JANET MARTIN

In ancient Ireland, December was known as the Holy Month and the tree was called the Holy Tree. The night of Christmas is known in Gaelic as, "Oiche Nodhlag."

Old Irish legend tells that at midnight on Christmas Eve even the donkey bends down on one knee in homage to the Christ child. The ass or donkey, symbols of poverty, are neglected and despised in many parts of Ireland.

There is a lovely old Irish custom of lighted candles in the window, which is a tradition still followed by many. Colored candles, usually red, placed in a sconce made from a hallowed-out turnip, made a welcome light on Christmas Eve from the principal window or sometimes every window in the house.

Country people would step outside at about ten o'clock, in the evening to count the many lighted candles, which gave a welcoming light over the countryside.

Irish Candle

In the eighth century, there was an ancient Irish candle, known as the King of Royal Candle. It was of large size and the wick was thicker than a man's body. The huge wick burned all night in the presence of an Irish king or chief.

On Christmas Eve in Cork, in the south of Ireland, a three-branched candle was lit in the name of Trinity, and when it was extinguished, it was preserved throughout the year as a protection against evil spirits.

Lighted candles in the windows of every country cottage has also another meaning. It is an old Irish legend, that the Holy family travels the roads of the world again, with a preference for the roads of Ireland, each Christmas.

Christmas festivities which have an association with Ireland include hunting the wren on St. Stephen's Day (Dec. 26) and musicians known as the Christmas Waits and the Mummers, toured Ireland at Christmas time.

Some of these old celebrations are being revived for modern festivities. A Christmas song, enjoyed by many today, "When Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," was written almost three centuries ago by the Irish poet, "Nahum Tate."

Feasting at Christmas included the fruit cake with thick almond frosting or icing, heart shaped strouns, parleys (a type of potato cake made from flour and potato). Some main courses for this feasting included mild cured hake or ling (usually served with a milk and butter sauce) and a round of spiced beef.

A Round of Spiced Beef

2 cups cider

1 bay leaf

1 tsp. each, cinnamon, all spice, cloves, pepper

1 1/2 tsp. salt

3 lbs. salted or pickled beef

2 onions, chopped

2 stalks celery, chopped

1 tsp. butter or margarine

Combine cider, bay leaf, spices and salt. Cover the meat with cider mixture. Let stand for 12 hours, turning twice. Place meat with marinade in saucepan and add enough water to cover. Cover and simmer for 2 1/2-3 hours, or until done. Remove meat, cool, and serve cold. Or serve hot with following sauce: saute vegetables in butter for 5 minutes; add 1/2 pint of stock from meat and simmer for 10 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Serve spoonfuls of hot vegetable on slices of hot spiced beef.

Hoffa Allowed One Yule Gift

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Christmas inside the walls of Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary will be much the same for all 1,650 inmates—including No. 33296—James R. Hoffa.

There will be a super turkey dinner with all the fancy trimmings, just one gift package, and all the holiday greetings relatives and friends cared to mail.

There will be midnight and daylight church services, caroling and finally a special movie. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, is spending his first Christmas in prison. He's now in the 10th month of an eight-year jury tampering sentence. Warden Jacob J. Parker as usual declines to discuss any prisoner because "we don't single out any man."

But insiders who've watched Hoffa eating, working and playing—he likes the weight and muscle-building equipment in the gym and an occasional game of handball—say he doesn't try to throw his weight around. He's jovial, jokes a lot, has shown no outburst of temper.

C&NW Ore Loadings Tops 6.5 Million Tons In '67

By CLINT DUNATHAN

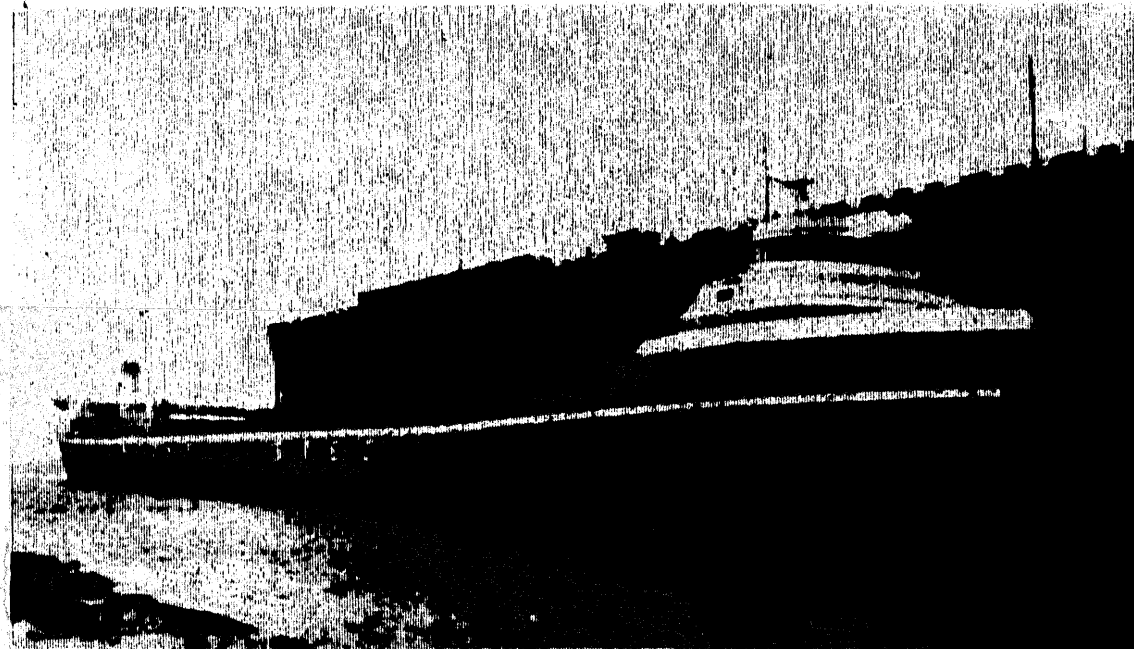

The Chicago & North Western Railway this year came within 37,321 tons — about two boat loads — of equaling its record ore handling season of 1966, L. A. McMillan, dock agent, reported today.

With the clearing of the E.L. Ryerson at 5 p. m. Friday with the last cargo of the season, the North Western had loaded out 6,565,770 tons of iron ore in 447 boats, compared to 6,603,091 tons in 451 boats last year. The Ryerson took on 22,262 tons of ore for Inland Steel at Indiana Harbor to close out the season. The same big Inland Steel carrier had opened the 1967 season at Escanaba on April 7.

"We didn't set a new yearly record, but we did set a new record for December," McMillan said of the volume of ore shipped from Escanaba last month.

68 Per Cent Pellet Ore
December's shipments totaled 616,341 tons loaded into 36 boats. This was about 98,000 tons better than last year's December record of 518,140 tons in 30 boats.

The volume of pellet ore compared to natural ore continues to climb steadily, McMillan reported. This year pellet ore accounted for 68 per cent of the total, compared to 50 per cent pellet last year.

The increasing production of pelletized ore is accompanied by the North Western's announced plan for an expansion and modernization of its ore handling facility here. The new dock of conveyor type is scheduled to be in operation by the spring of 1969.

Grading for the new tracks has been completed, the Gustafson Oil Co. is removing its tanks from North Western property, and north-bay shore residents have received notice to remove from the land that will be involved in the development.

McMillan said that he doubted the North Western will set any new records in ore volume in 1968 — a year when construction of the new terminal facility will be in full swing. The present wooden ore loading dock is scheduled to come down beginning in September, 1968.

the last to unload a boat this year, with the tanker Amoco Indiana expected to clear as late as Jan. 1 — the latest ever for Standard Oil, said Manager Robert Haack.

The tentative schedule for Standard Oil's arrival of the Amoco Indiana on Dec. 27, arrival of the Amoco Illinois on Dec. 28, and the return of the Amoco Indiana from Whiting, Ind., with a final cargo on Dec. 30 or 31.

Thelsen Clemens Oil Co. at Kipling expects the arrival of the Mobil Chicago possibly today, followed by the Polaris on Dec. 30 with a cargo of gasoline and fuel oil out of East Chicago. Last year the last tanker to unload at Thelsen Clemens terminal was on Dec. 23.

Marathon Oil Co., Gladstone, expects its last tanker of the season about Dec. 27 with the arrival of the Meteor from South Chicago, said John LaSalle, terminal manager. The C. Reiss Coal Co. at Escanaba ended its season this year as early as Nov. 13, when the last coal boat delivered a cargo to complete its requirements.

Record At Marquette
At Marquette an all-time record of 7,249,008 tons was registered as the 1967 iron ore shipping season came to a close.

The record is 123,566 tons above the previous mark of 7,125,442 tons set at the city's two iron ore loading docks last year.

The Soo Line ended its shipping season in late November with a total of 875,307 tons for the year, compared with 1,158,617 tons in 1966. The year's total stood at 5,373,701 tons compared with 5,967,275 tons during 1966, at the Lake Superior & Ishpeming dock.

Harry Nelson, LS&I dock agent, said approximately 90 per cent of the shipments from the LS&I dock were in iron ore pellets.

Christmas Services At Immanuel

There will be five services of worship at Immanuel Lutheran over this Christmas week-end. At the Sunday 9 a. m. service the Junior Choir under the direction of Mrs. Orville Hakes will sing, "Joy to the World."

The Senior Choir will sing, "Gloria," by Beethoven at the 10:40 a. m. service. The Senior Choir is directed by Sam Ham. After each service the Sunday School pupils will view the filmstrip, "The Christ Child Comes to Christian Homes."

On Christmas Eve there will also be two Candlelight services. At the first service at 7:30 the Junior choir will sing, "There's a Song in the Air," by Holland. This service is primarily for families with younger children so that they might establish the habit of worship on Christmas Eve. The second service will be held at 10:30 p. m. with the Senior Choir singing a Norwegian carol, "A Joyous Christmas Song."

During the candle lighting all lights will be put out. The candle of the Christ child will then be lit and then it's light will be spread to the other candles while the congregation sings, "Silent Night, Holy Night."

On Christmas day there will be one service of worship at 10 a. m. The guest speaker at this service will be Bill Johnson of St. Paul, Minn. The Senior Choir will sing, "Jesu Bambino," by Yon and "Te Deum in E flat," by Buck.

All members and friends are cordially invited to attend these services of worship.

Alice Gauthier, Holy Name Senior, Wins Scholarship

Alice Gauthier, a senior at Holy Name High School, was one of two winners of the Edgar L. Harden Scholarships. The scholarship will provide $1,000 per year for four years at Northern Michigan University.

Miss Gauthier is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Gauthier of Schafter.

To participate in the awards program Dec. 16 at Northern Michigan University high school seniors must have had a high school academic average of 3.5 or higher. Rank in the top five of their graduating class or qualified as a National Merit Semifinalist.

Farmers Increase Interest In Beef

"We had an average of 60 farmers per meeting for a series of three beef meetings one week apart," said Joseph L. Harman, Delta County agricultural agent. "This can only mean one thing: Farmers are still interested in raising cattle."

"We know they will not make a fortune at it, but it is a challenging occupation. We hope that the information presented will help them do a better job."

"The Upper Peninsula can produce grass and hay in great abundance. This is something cattle can convert to meat for human consumption. We as humans wouldn't do too well trying to take care of body needs eating grass and other roughages."

"We often hear people criticize over-production and government subsidies. We in Michigan only produce 35 per cent of the meat we consume, so there is room for expansion of our beef industry. We are producing more feed than our livestock can consume.

"Beef cattle farming can be a full-time or a part-time operation. One doesn't need as much investment in equipment and buildings as in dairy enterprise. The amount of care is not as exacting nor time consuming, either. This makes off-farm employment a greater possibility."

"We expect to see the number of beef cattle increase in the Upper Peninsula. If farmers will do a respectable job with a herd in feeding, improve breeding and management, they will remain competitive. We want to be a part of this farm movement."

GLADSTONE Bolek Tells Of SCUBA Diving

Tom Bolek, a member of the Gladstone High School Faculty, presented an interesting and informative program on SCUBA diving to members of the Gladstone Lions Club Thursday evening at the Yacht Club.

After displaying his equipment and explaining the principles of SCUBA diving, Bolek showed 35 mm colored slides of a dive he made with other fans to see the sunken Canadian ore boat Americana near Houghton, Mich. in 1964. The Americana sank in a storm between Houghton and Isle Royal in the 1940's. He said they were successful in locating and raising the safe, containing the payroll money for a Canadian lumber mill. Despite various questions from members regarding the amount of money taken off the ship, Bolek steadfastly refused to name the amount.

Gifts to be used in the Child's Welfare Christmas Baskets were brought to the meeting.

Mike Kelly, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Kelly, was a guest at the meeting.

Gladstone Man Okays Tech's Ski Facilities

HOUGHTON—Michigan Tech's ski lift got an inspection recently—by a fully qualified inspector thoroughly familiar with his subject.

He was Gerald Harris, a former Tech Ski Patrol captain and a 1953 civil engineering graduate of Michigan Tech University. Harris is employed by Standard Oil Co. in Gladstone, but is a qualified ski instructor for the Michigan Department of Labor, explains Fred Leonard, Michigan Tech ski instructor.

Harris checked the Mont Ripley ski hill facilities and found they met Michigan safety codes. He inspected the T-bar which is 1,906 feet long and the two rope tows which are 700 feet long and 1,100 feet long. The T-bar has a vertical rise of 410 feet.

Locker storage for 600 pair of skis has been completed at the chalet. The University has invested $125,000 in the American Timber Homes made in Escanaba chalet, T-bar and slopes.

Kipling Woman Joins 'Miracle'

BELOIT, Wis.—A Kipling woman will be reunited with her 13-year-old brother Sunday after a "Christmas miracle" has allowed the boy to leave a hospital bed.

Mrs. William Fossum, 22, will join the family welcome for Barney Guetschow, who has been almost totally paralyzed for two years suffering from a rare affliction known as Wilson's disease.

Barney arrived in Beloit this week after spending two months undergoing extensive tests at the University of California hospital at San Francisco.

Totally paralyzed when he left for California, Barney was able to move his eyes and head and smile as he was taken off a plane at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

Barney is now in Beloit Memorial Hospital, but he'll be accompanied home by a nurse Sunday where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Guetschow; a sister, Suzanne, 20; a brother, Michael, 16, and Mrs. Fossum will be waiting to welcome him.

Citizens and industries of Beloit last fall donated $10,000 to help pay for Barney's treatment in California. Prior to establishment of the "Barney Fund," the family spent $35,000 in an effort to cure the boy from what was first believed to be a brain tumor.

Christmas Tree Hangs On Ceiling

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—What do you do when your 5-year-old son wants a Christmas tree of his own but has to share his room with a 2-year-old brother who likes to crush the ornaments?

You hang the tree from the ceiling.

That was the solution devised by Harold R. Mitchell, an upholsterer who lives in suburban Mableton, after his wife tired of cleaning up the shattered wreckage.

SANTA SMOKED A PIPE in the picture of him on a greeting card from the Delta County Historical Museum files. The card and others were gifts of the Elliott family of Sack Bay.

Annual Holiday Program Held At Rock School

The annual Christmas program was held at the Rock School Wednesday evening and Santa visited the school Thursday, last day of school this year. School will resume Jan. 2.

The title of the Christmas program was "Christmas in Foreign Lands and at Home."

Kim Carlson, Larry Linna, Karen Messer, Robert Koski, and Vicky Lippens accompanied Santa, played by Mark Wilcox, to visit children in other lands.

Joanne Waeghe, Daniel

Hammersmith, Richard Peltonen, Donna Conroy, Michael Seppanen, Dianne Johnson, Rebecca Beauchamp, Cheryl Seppanen, Linda Norkool, Susan Seppanen, Margaret Jekel, Jim Manikewicz, Robert Small, Karla Lee, Kenneth Yanke and Pamela Bazinet.

Chorus composed of the various grade students sang Christmas carols. The Rock School Band and Girl's Chorus added to the program with their selections. Jean Kivela narrated the program.

The band is under the direction of John Viotta; music director, Mrs. Caroline Karmine; accompanist, John Small; dramatic coaches, the elementary teachers; scenery was done by art and industrial arts classes.

The ancient Greeks made a musical instrument, the sambuke, a shrill-toned harp, from the stem of the elder tree.

Bethlehem Inns Fear Arab Raids Scare Visitors

JERUSALEM (AP)—Officials in Bethlehem fear there will be room at the inns this Christmas.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv reported today that a group of Arab saboteurs who were recently captured by the Israelis had planned to raid Bethlehem and terrorize foreign pilgrims during Christmas.

The Israeli Army said it could not confirm the report but a spokesman added it was "probably true."

El Fatah, the Arab sabotage group, already has declared it would not be responsible for tourists injured in Christmas raids.

Few pilgrims were reported today in the town where Christ was born, and official sources said only a few hundred of the 15,000 expected from abroad had reached Israel.

Most Arab hotels in east Jerusalem — seized from Jordan in the June war—reported heavy bookings but there had been some cancellations.

The sources believe that of the 6,000 Christian Arabs in Israel and the occupied west bank area that usually visit Bethlehem, less than 1,000 will turn up.

Israelis were putting the finishing Christmas touches to Jerusalem and Bethlehem.

A giant screen for a closed circuit television relay of the midnight Mass in Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity is being prepared on the roof of the police headquarters opposite.

The government assigned 1,000 police for special Christmas duty in Bethlehem and Jerusalem.

Pistons Cold, Lose To Lakers

By The Associated Press
The Los Angeles Lakers caught a cold, shooting Detroit Pistons to a 107-103 victory Friday night in their National Basketball Association game.

The victory broke the Lakers' four-game losing streak and was their first triumph in 13 days. Detroit was plagued by a poor shooting average from the field, hitting only 39 per cent, 40-of-103.

Eigin Baylor led the Lakers with 25 points, followed by Archie Clark with 23 and Jerry West with 21.

The leading scorer for the Pistons was Len Chappell. After sitting out the first quarter, Chappell hit 11 of 12 field goal attempts and six of seven free throws for 28 points.

In other NBA games, Boston topped Cincinnati 120-117. Baltimore whipped Chicago 117-112. Seattle beat New York 120-108 and San Francisco edged San Diego 103-97. In the only American Basketball Association game, Anaheim nipped Denver 108-102.

Notre Dame's Terry Hanratty set a collegiate record when he took part in a total of 75 passing-rushing plays against Purdue. But Notre Dame lost the game.

Eyes Of Texas On Grid Front

By The Associated Press
The Eyes of Texas figure to get a heavy workout tonight and Sunday as Houston and Dallas shoot for Eastern supremacy in pro football's emotion-charged Super Bowl countdown.

Houston's title-thirsty Oilers can clinch the Eastern Division crown in the American Football League tonight at Miami by beating or tying the improved Dolphins. If the Oilers stumble, the New York Jets can force an Eastern playoff next week by getting past San Diego Sunday on the West Coast.

The Oakland Raiders, who pocketed the Western Division title three weeks ago, will entertain the Eastern survivor in the AFL championship game either next Sunday, if there is no Jets-Oilers playoff, or the following week.

At Dallas Sunday, the Cowboys tackle the Cleveland Browns for the Eastern Conference berth in the National Football League championship game next week. The Eastern champs will meet the winner of today's Western Conference title showdown between Los Angeles and Green Bay.

At the end of the playoff trail is the rich AFL-NFL Super Bowl clash Jan. 14 at Miami.

Wally Lemm's Houston club, which finished in a last-place tie with Miami in the AFL Eastern race a year ago, has rebounded behind a tough defense, the running of Hoyle Granger and the field leadership of quarterback Pete Beathard, acquired from Kansas City in mid-season.

The Oilers have won four of their last five games—including a 17-14 squeeze over Miami at home—in their drive to capture the Eastern pennant for the first time since 1963.

However, the young Dolphins also have been on the upswing, taking three of their last four starts behind the rookie passing combination of Bob Griese and Jack Clancy.

Granger, with 1,034 rushing yards, has an outside chance of overtaking AFL leader Jim Nance of Boston, who finished with 1,216. Griese has thrown 96 straight passes without an interception—30 short of the league mark set six years ago by Boston's Butch Songin.

Unless Miami repulses the Oilers' title thrust, the Jets will merely run through the motions at San Diego Sunday, as will the Raiders and Buffalo Bills in their regular season finale at Oakland.

If New York still has a life, however, quarterback Joe Namath will shoot the works for the Jets despite a broken cheekbone suffered in last Sunday's 38-29 loss to Oakland.

Namath will be throwing to George Sauer and Don Maynard, as the Jets seek to end a three-game losing string and a six-year winless skein at San Diego.

Sunday's NFL collision at Dallas pairs two clubs who have been dominant in the Eastern Conference for the past four years. The Cowboys won the Capitol Division crown this season after finishing first in the East in 1966. The Browns, who won the Eastern title in 1964 and 1965, represent the Century Division this time around.

Gerald Warren of North Carolina State led the nation's kick-scoring players with 70 points last season. He made all 19 extra point attempts and booted 17 of 22 field goal attempts.

Bruins Blast Bradley Five

By The Associated Press
UCLA crushed previously unbeaten Bradley 100-73 for its 38th straight victory, but Coach Johnny Wooden of the National Collegiate Basketball Champions feared for a few minutes that he had lost tovering Lew Alcindor.

Mr. A, as the agile 7-footer is known on the UCLA campus, was accidentally hit in the right eye soon after the start of the second half of the game in Los Angeles Friday night.

Wooden sent his collegiate Player of the Year to the sidelines within a few minutes rather than take any chances. The injury turned out to be minor and big Lew will be back in action tonight against Notre Dame.

Before he left with 13 minutes left to play, Alcindor has scored 13 points and more importantly blocked 11 shots. Wooden soon took out his other regulars, but the 10th-ranked Braves from Peoria, Ill., couldn't stop the subs either.

Joe Allen finished high for the game with 31 points. Mike Warren, with 24, and Mike Lynn, with 22, led UCLA in winning streak.

Elvin Hayes, the Big E, broke loose for 10 points in the last three minutes to pace unbeaten Houston, second ranked to UCLA in the Associated Press poll, to an 81-76 victory over Arizona at Tucson, Ariz. Hayes finished with 26 points in leading the Cougars to their ninth in a row.

Third-ranked Vanderbilt, paced by Tom Hagan's 22 points, whipped Seton Hall 85-67 in the first round of the Vanderbilt Invitational at Nashville, Tenn., after Oregon had owned Wake Forest 76-58.

Seventh-ranked Kentucky, the only other team in the Top Ten to see action, blew an 18-point lead but came on again to beat Dayton 88-85 in the first round of the U.K. Invitational at Lexington, Ky. Two free throws by Dan Issel and a basket by Thad Jaracz in the last 18 seconds gave Adolph Rupp the 365th victory of his coaching career after Dayton, down 41-23, had rallied to tie at 83-83 with 90 seconds left.

South Carolina edged Cincinnati 64-61 in the other UK first-round game.

Arizona State held off a late Michigan rally and beat the Wolverines 92-91 in the final of the Sun Devil Classic at Phoenix, Ariz., after Oregon State took third place with an 40-46 squeaker over Oklahoma State.

Texas at El Paso rallied in the second half to beat San Francisco 81-61 in the final of the Sun Carnival Classic at El Paso after Southern Illinois edged Maryland 73-72 in overtime for third place.

SPORTS MEMORIES!

Fourth Week December, 1957

- An 8 point splurge in the fourth quarter by Wally Severinsen lifted the Holy Name Crusaders past Munising 52-51.
- Mike Milecki reached his finest hour hitting 23 points to lead the Escanaba Eskymos past the previously unbeaten Stephenson Eagles 52-48.
- Jim LaLonde hit 15 points but it proved not to be enough as the Newberry Indians used a strong second half press defense to overcome the Gladstone Braves 61-51.
- Elaine Feller fashioned a 190 game to take top honors for the week in women's bowling in Escanaba.

Pass Rush May Be Key To Cowboy-Brown Battle

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The pass rush just might be the key to victory in Sunday's Dallas-Cleveland battle for the Eastern Conference championship of the National Football League.

Especially since two of the best rushers in the business will be at work and the two quarterbacks—Don Meredith of Dallas and Frank Ryan of Cleveland—might appear a little more susceptible than most.

It wasn't by design but Meredith and Ryan seem to be trying to outdo each other as to whom has been most injured.

Both are due to be in good condition at the start of the struggle but Ryan has a bruised left forearm that might give him trouble under a strong push. And Meredith plans to play without a mask that had been covering a broken nose.

Meredith also may be favoring a twisted knee by bandaging it up.

Both teams have vicious pass rushes. The Dallas front four of Willie Townes, Jethro Pugh, Bob Lilly and George Andrie have trapped the opposing quarterback 45 times—second in the league and No. 1 among the teams left in the NFL championship fight.

The Cleveland rushers are Bill Glass, Walter Johnson, Jim Kanicki and Paul Wiggin and they have 41 traps.

Also, Cleveland, according to Coach Blanton Collier, is blitzing more than any other Cleveland team in history.

Cleveland, it was revealed in the statistics, blitzed 30 per cent of the time, which is about twice as much as Dallas ordinarily does.

Cleveland throws the best rushing offense in the league against the No. 1 rushing defense, which might mean a standoff there. And if both pass rushes are working well, there might be a standoff there, too.

But don't worry about a tie. A sudden death playoff is scheduled. If they tie, the team that scores first in the overtime wins.

Pete Maravich Breaks Record

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Pistol Pete Maravich is not going to hang up his Lucky Socks for Santa Claus.

No, sir! It just wouldn't do for St. Nick to benevolently decide the Louisiana State sophomore basketball star needs a new pair.

Papa Press Maravich, the LSU coach, completely agrees with son Pete.

Anyway, Christmas came early for the Maravich family. Stopping constantly to pull up his droop two-year-old socks, Pete popped in 58 points for a Southeastern Conference record as the Tigers blasted Mississippi State 111-87 Friday night.

Press got his fifth victory in seven starts—that's two more triumphs than LSU had for all of the 1966-67 season.

Arizona Topples Michigan Quint In Sun Devil Tournament Finals

By The Associated Press
Arizona State punctured the University of Michigan's zone defense with sharp outside shooting and weathered a furious finish to win the Sun Devil Classic basketball championship 92-91 Friday night.

Willie Harris hit nine of 16 from the field and scored 18 points to lead the Sun Devils. Denny Stewart had 20 points and Ken Maxey 19 for the Wolverines.

In other Big Ten games, unbeaten Ohio State repelled Butler 71-69 to run its record to 5-0. Purdue came from 11 points behind to trim Miami of Ohio 67-65. Minnesota downed Ohio University 73-63.

But Illinois lost at Stanford 74-72 and Iowa was defeated by California 79-73. The six game split left the Big Ten with a 39-22 record against nonleague opponents.

Tonight Michigan State plays at Wichita, Illinois is at California and Iowa plays at Stanford.

The turning point in the hard-fought Arizona State-Michigan game came with Michigan leading 76-73 and 5:33 left.

Bob Edwards blocked a Michigan shot, took the rebound and was fouled by Rudy Tomjanovich. That eliminated Tomjanovich, the tournament's most valuable player.

Two minutes later the Sun Devils had a seven-point lead that barely held up in a last-ditch effort by the Wolverines.

Ohio State blew a 21-point lead at Butler and trailed by six points with 4:22 left. Then nine free throws clinched the game. Bill Hosket and Dave Sorenson each netted 24 points for the Buckeyes.

final six points for the Boiler-makers to total 30.

Sophomore Larry Oversket was Minnesota's big gun with 21 points, mostly on long one-handers from the corner. LeRoy Gardner added 17 and Tom Kondla 13.

Iowa was no match for California's unbeaten Bears. The Hawkeyes rallied from a 65-50 deficit early in the last half behind Sam Williams who tallied 24 points. But the rally didn't hold.

Illinois trailed 43-38 at half-time, tied it 45-45 and then went ahead. But Stanford's Don Griffin scored the first of his 13 points to put the Indians back on top and they managed to keep a couple of points ahead through the final minutes. Dave Scholz headed the Illini with 21 points and Stanford tried to contain him in the last half with a zone.

Earl The Pearl Pro Cage Star

BALTIMORE (AP) — If Earl "The Pearl" Monroe continues to improve, the National Basketball Association might yet become his oyster.

The rick from little Winston-Salem State joined the Baltimore Bullets this season with a reputation as a high scorer and a court jester.

He quickly displayed his hard-wood hi-jinks in an intrasquad game and had Baltimore fans leaping from their seats in appreciation. But the rest of his game had a more difficult transition from college to the pro ranks.

Suddenly, aided by a bit of advice from veteran Bob Ferry, Monroe has begun to take charge on the firing line. He has scored 90 points in the last three games, leading the Bullets to three straight victories for the first time in a year.

The Pearl scored a career high 33 points Friday night as Baltimore edged the Chicago Bulls 117-112. He also grabbed 10 rebounds from his backcourt position and assisted on four baskets.

Russia Rated Hockey Choice

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Russia, touted to have the strongest hockey team it has ever presented in international competition, is an overwhelming favorite to win the Broadmoor World Invitational Ice Hockey Tournament which begins here Tuesday.

Russia won the crown in 1964 and 1965 but did not compete in last year's games.

Scrooge Sticks Stamps On Supermarket Windows

By AILEEN SNOODY
NEW YORK—(NEA)—At Christmastime, the old saw that everyone is strange but me and me and sometimes I think, etc., takes a tinsel twist.

An otherwise shrewd businessman, for example, hates trading stamps. He reveals that he delights in slapping such stamps moistened by droplets from a leaky milk container upon a supermarket window. Where do his kicks come from this? Well, his bag is watching some ardent stamp collector rush immediately to scrape the stamps from the store window. He certainly wins a spot in the Scrooge poll for Christmas '67.

barrow one Christmas. She redeemed her stamps for a steam iron—for him.

And only would a Palm Beach, Fla., gentleman think of redeeming his stamps for a heating pad. He told Eleanor Cadz, the manager, "It's for my dog. We're going north for the holidays and it may be cold in those hotel rooms up there."

Children are cute but often call for some diplomatic guidance from the clerks.

Alice Latimer of Richmond, Va., intervened when a pal persuaded one small chap that, since he was getting a hammer for his dad, he ought to get one for his mother, too. "That way," the young lad reasoned, "the gifts will be the same." Mom got a necklace.

The holly wreath for originality goes to the woman who traded for a jam and jelly set. "I'm giving myself a gift," she said. "It's for my dentures."

Throughout the country, friends, clubs or church groups report pooling their stamps to help families whose homes burn. In their temporary quarters, the shocked parents and children find gifts of pots and pans, towels, sheets and bedspreads plus clothing, shoes and other personal items.

In Fargo, N. D., one stamp saver overheard several elderly citizens in a rest home lament the loss of their rocking chairs. She picked two from the catalogue and they were by the rest home tree Christmas morning.

Curiously, most men grumble about the wear-and-tear, both physical and financial, the redemption spawns. Yet stamp redemption store managers across the country claim men seem to be more romantic in their selections than women but not without trepidation.

One husband turned in 15 books of stamps for a candelabra and silverware. "These are for my wife," he told a clerk. "I sure hope she doesn't find out her stamps are missing."

"Sometimes my little men don't make enough to go around," Brown tells the little ones who sit on his lap every day during the Christmas season. "But I'll try and also have other surprises for you."

"Sometimes Santa forgets," he tells them. "But you'll still love me just the same won't you?"

"Our 8-year-old was beginning to have doubts," one woman wrote. "After coming to see you, her belief was as strong as ever."

One woman watching Brown in action said she was amazed. "He is infinitely patient, unruffled and tireless. He is truly Santa Claus."

"If the parents don't plan for a particular gift," says Brown, "I don't want to build the child up for a letdown."

Brown spent years touring with the Shrine Circus as "Brown the Clown," capping each tour with a year-end stint as St. Nick for youngsters at hospitals and orphanages.

State Police statistics show a 10 per cent decrease so far from last year in the number of highway fatalities and that 30 persons were killed over the Christmas period last year with 26 deaths reported during the New Year's weekend.

Milliken said State Police will put on extra road patrols over the holidays.

LIANSING (AP)—Acting Gov. William Milliken urges Michigan motorists to make safety on the highways an early New Year's resolution.

"I hope every driver, passenger and pedestrian will resolve before the holidays begin to drive, ride and walk with the greatest of care to prevent death and injury during this festive period," Milliken said.

A good record over the holidays can help Michigan close out 1967 with a much improved traffic death record, Milliken said.

Veteran Santa Skips Promises

KALAMAZOO (AP)—If the kids in Kalamazoo don't believe in Santa Claus, their parents do. Darwin Brown, who has been portraying the whiskered gent for 49 years, 15 of them at a local department store, knows that it takes more than makeup and a funny suit to woo the youngsters.

A little tact helps. "Santa never promises," advises Brown.

His patter prepares children for that Christmas morning suspicion that maybe Santa wasn't listening after all when he was told what to bring.

"Sometimes my little men don't make enough to go around," Brown tells the little ones who sit on his lap every day during the Christmas season. "But I'll try and also have other surprises for you."

Yule Discs Pursue Humor

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newfeatures Writer

If you like a comedy record under the tree for a little post-Christmas humor, we can recommend Jonathan Winters' "Movies Are Better Than Ever."

First the warning that bands on this Verve record were once parts of three other Jonathan Winters records, then on with the recommendation. Winters does the horror picture to a T — Karloff voice, squeaking door, electricity of fear and all.

He does Galen Drake, the tense voices of adventure pictures, natives in the jungle, the West, just as well. And just when you're identifying, thinking he's doing a take-off on a picture that you actually can remember seeing way back when, Winters pulls a twist. For example, no prison picture with a brave Father Duffy was ever quite like his. Which is just that much funnier.

In the political (jugalur) vein, is "Lyndon Johnson's Lonely Hearts Club Band" on Atco. Earle Doud and Alen Robin did one like this before, "Welcome to the LBJ Ranch," with an interviewer asking questions and a famous person's voice answering what had obviously been a different question, the juxtaposition making it funny. Now they've got Westbrook van Voorhis and John Cameron Swayze to come up with, "How much mail do you receive as an average?" and Sen. Dirksen to answer, "I received a postcard about three and a half years ago."

It's fun with Johnson, Reagan, Robert Kennedy, Humphrey, Ladybird Johnson, Nixon and Goldwater, and none of it slices deeply enough to be uncomfortable, just to tickle.

But political humor ala "The First Family" just isn't up to what it was the first time we heard that classic, and "Senator Bobby's Christmas Party" is at best a sometime funny thing.

The Columbia LP starts with a not very amusing description of the way to the Dynasty Room in the Kennedy manor, perks up with a father's trouble, putting together a bicycle which arrived in pieces, and hits one of its high moments when "Senator Bobby" sings "I'm Dreaming of a White House Christmas."

Chet Dowling and Bill Minkin wrote this one.

"Rally Round the Flag" get humorously political at times since RCA's Fannie Flagg does a telling "Mrs. Johnson" giving her beautification speech.

She also does Susie Sweetwater, society reporter on a bright, folksy, gossip home-town radio station. She parodies the meeting of two old girl friends, one married and a mother, and recounting her "blessings," takes off on a well-known TV cooks and describes the talent competition in a beauty contest.

It's a very funny record, but definitely for "the girls."

"Getting ethale," we have "Cowboys and Colored People" by Flip Wilson on Atlantic. This isn't overwhelming, but it's nice. Wilson assumes you know that he's a Negro; he doesn't keep talking about it. He talks about the Indians in standard racial clichés like, "they're not ready yet." And he goes behind the scenes to explain what caused the disagreement between David and Goliath. David, a singer, was the Ray Charles of his time.

"Have a Jewish Christmas?" on Tower is pretty much a one-joke album with variations on that joke. What does a Jew do about something which is Christian but as much a part of American life as Christmas?

With a few Yiddish words and a good many clichés, celebrations, cards, trees, Santa and the competition of decorations are mined for a modicum of mirth by TV writers Ray Brenner and Barry E. Blitzer.

AN OLD-FASHIONED GREETING is this card of half-century ago from the collections at the Delta County Historical Museum. The card is from the Elliott family of Sack Bay.

Fire Can Ruin Holiday Joy; Prevent It!

With the nation's fire losses running over 18 per cent higher than a year ago, the American Insurance Association urges householders to use care with fire during the Christmas holiday season.

"Fire prevention is a job for everyone in the family," said T. Lawrence Jones, president of the Association. "Our statisticians have found that three out of every four fires in the United States are caused by carelessness, and if we can eliminate these needless fires, we can reduce our fire toll sharply."

Fires this year are expected to cause property losses of around $1.5 billion and fire deaths are expected to run into the thousands, Jones added. "This heavy toll in lives and property can be reduced if we all join in preventing fires," he stressed.

Jones pointed out that matches and smoking are among the leading causes of fire, responsible for every fifth fire in the United States, and that care with matches and smoking is essential as a good fire prevention step.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

Christmas carols originated in the 13th century, when traditional dance melodies were adapted to religious texts. Something lovelier than the old Latin hymns and chants were welcomed by worshippers.

Migrating—whistling—swans fly so high and fast that they are almost invisible from the ground.

Wants Little, May Get Nothing

By TOM TIEDE
WELCH, W. Va. (NEA) — A mile and a half into the hills off State Route 10 near here, 7-year-old Richard Church waits excitedly for Christmas Day. He wants a fire wagon. "Boy," he says, "oh, boy, I can hardly wait."

Frankly, his wish is a selfish and impractical one. He needs other things worse. He needs shoes, for instance. He needs a haircut badly. He could even use a pair of stockings so that one might hang over the door Christmas eve.

But, then, a fire wagon is important to a boy, even a boy who has nothing else. And besides, shoes would hurt his feet, his hair would grow shaggy again, and a stocking over the door would very likely go empty.

So, a fire wagon. "Oh, boy!"

Will he get it? Probably not.

Young Richard Church is one of the 34 million Americans who wait the holidays this year under the official government pronouncement of belonging to the poverty class . . . that is, a member of a family whose total income is $3,000 or less each year.

In Richard's case, his family earns nothing each year. His father, an out-of-work coal miner, gets $121 a month from the welfare department, and that has to stretch over six kids, a mother and an old family dog.

Take two or three meals a day for eight mouths, the rent, the electricity, enough clothing to keep the chill away . . . and the rest of December's $121 may not cover a fire wagon, not even a cheap one, which is the only kind under consideration.

Richard's mother, Patricia, 35, says the family will definitely celebrate Christmas. She promises a tree, because they can be freely harvested from the immediate Appalachian hills. And she promises, with food-stamp aid, a good meal.

But a fire wagon? "Well," she shrugs, "we'll see."

Actually, young Richard Church understands the impossibilities here. And he tempers his wishes with knowing restraint. A kid who seldom gets anything he asks for is hardly an optimist. A kid like that is suspicious of hope.

And the boy is icily realistic anyway. He knows full well the way it is. In his time he has had most of life's cold water tossed at him.

He is, for one thing, cross-eyed. His right pupil turns decidedly inward. When he wants to see anything clearly, which is most of the time, he must cock his head to one side to get the correct focus.

This sight problem itself isn't so bad, perhaps, but the side effects are dangerous. The deformity has upset Richard's sense of balance and he often falls for no reason . . . down the stairs, in the dirt, on the rocks.

It happens daily. "Like to scare us to death," his parent admits.

Mother Church says a clinic doctor in Bluefield prescribed corrective lenses years ago. But she didn't know where to get them. "So I never did."

But actually, getting the spectacles has never rated high priority in the Church family. Nobody really pays that much attention to Richard's eyes. Everybody is too busy worrying about the rest of him.

"He is," says the mother, "also an epileptic."

Richard is, in fact, a serious epileptic. He has a seizure almost daily. And virtually all of his waking hours are spent in periodic fits of less intensified but completely uncontrolled shaking.

"He'll just be sitting there or something," says Mrs. Church, "and then it'll happen. He just goes to pieces. Ain't nothing we can do for him at all."

Combined, Richard Church's physical miseries have forced him into a shut-in's existence. He attended a preschool program two years ago but knocked himself out during a fit and hasn't returned to class since.

Today he seldom leaves his home, which is a half-century old, unpainted and almost unfurnished. Plastic sheets are nailed to the windows. The roof leaks. A stain of coal dust covers everything . . . including Richard.

His days are dreary and monotonous. Morning. Afternoon. Evening. All the same. Sleep. Wake up. Begin the whole thing over again.

Mostly, the boy plays with whatever is available, which isn't much. He runs around the rubble yard without shoes. He likes to dig the ground with sticks. He sits on the porch. There is an old, woeful television set.

"He don't do much," his mother says, "he needs something."

In truth, Richard Church needs almost everything. Medi-

Pick Up Your Gift Wrappings

On Christmas morning, pick up gift wrappings immediately after presents have been opened.

Rumpled papers are always a fire hazard, the Association pointed out.

If there are wrappings you wish to save, fold them up neatly and put them away.

The rest should be gathered together and placed in a waste container—preferably the garbage or trash can outside the home.

cal attention, balanced meals, education, decent clothing. But as of now, this Christmas, there is scant possibility of this classic case of privation getting any of them.

Not even the fire wagon.

Examples of the wood carving art found in Egypt were made about 3,000 years before Christ.

Legend Says Mary Spent Her Last Days At Ephesus

Christmas services on a lonely mountain in Turkey carry on the tradition that Mary, the mother of Jesus, spent her last days at Ephesus.

The magnificent ruins of Ephesus lie near the Aegean Sea about 35 miles south of Izmir, the National Geographic Society says.

Though Ephesus was once the greatest Roman city in Asia Minor and a center of pagan worship, it also is closely associated with the youth of Christianity.

St. Paul lived and preached in Ephesus. St. John supposedly wrote his Gospel there. Since the third century A.D., local tradition has maintained that St. John, asked by Jesus at the Crucifixion to care for Mary, brought her with him to Anatolia when he fled Jerusalem.

Croesus, king of Lydia; Cyrus of Persia; and Alexander the Great. Romans seized Ephesus in 133 B.C., and made it the capital of the wealthy province of Asia.

Peoples of the area first worshipped the mother-goddess Cybele of Anatolia. This goddess later evolved into the Greek Artemis and finally into the Roman Diana.

The shrine for Artemis was the largest the Greeks ever built anywhere. The great marble temple stretched longer than a modern football field; it was one of the Seven Wonders of the World.

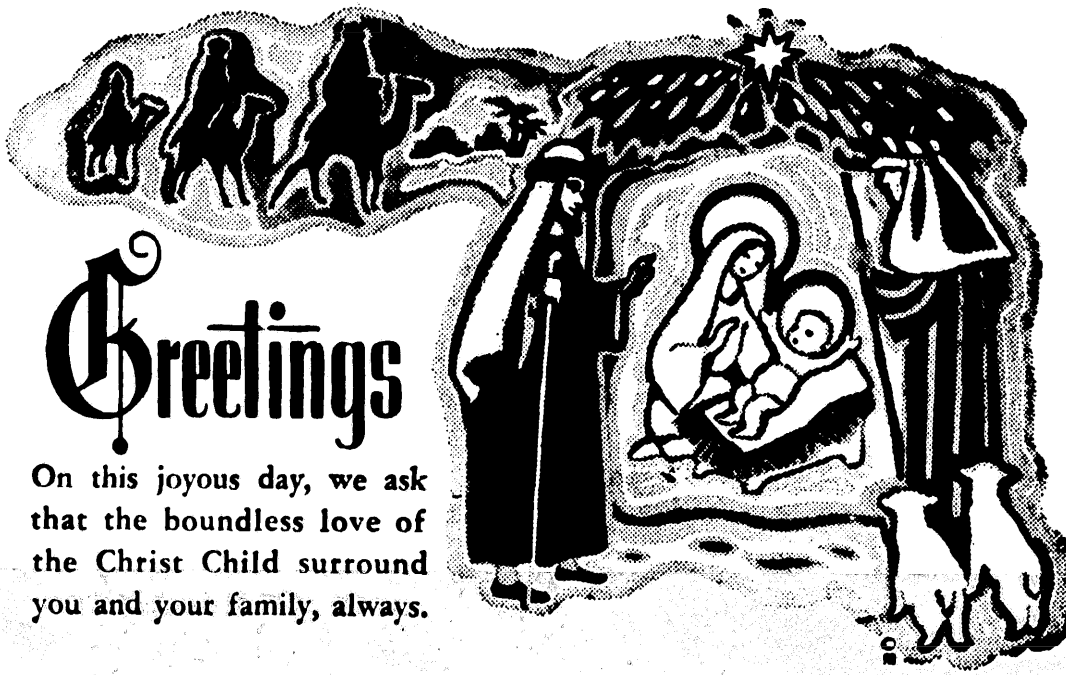

"Great Is Diana"

Under the Romans, Ephesus was a sumptuous city with a huge open-air theater, baths, gymnasiums, opulent gambling places, and broad avenues. St. John wrote, "Its merchants are the richest in the world, and its magic fascinate all nations." St. Paul preached the new faith of Christianity with such zeal that pagan townspeople, led by the silversmith Demetrius, rioted for two hours on one occasion, shouting, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" (Act 19:34).

Today, Ephesus remains one of the world's largest ruined cities. In the National Geographic's new book, Every Life In Bible Times, David S. Boyer writes, "A modern museum guards beautiful statues of Diana. All about, stretching over hills and across level land, stand white-columned relics of the old city, silent monuments to past glory."

Increasingly, American travelers are journeying to Ephesus, not only to see the incomparable ruins but also to enjoy the Florida-like climate and the attractive countryside.

Greetings

On this joyous day, we ask that the boundless love of the Christ Child surround you and your family, always.

Pilgrims Flock
People of Ephesus believe that Mary lived in the city itself until the demands of curiosity-seekers drove her to a mountain retreat. Her death was kept a secret.

Today's pilgrims, Christian and Moslem alike, climb five miles of narrow winding road to the House of the Virgin, a modest stone chapel at 1,400 feet. The devout have no doubt that the chapel was built on the foundation of Mary's last home.

Special masses are held at Christmas to honor Mary. In 1961, Pope John decided that the shrine should be considered a valid place of pilgrimage for Roman Catholics. Pope Paul visited it in 1967.

Greek 1,000 Years
Ephesus echoes with memories of other mother-goddess figures. According to Greek legend, the city was founded by the Amazons, mythical women warriors. Greeks lived there for a thousand years. Then the city was conquered in turn by Studded Tires For Yule Trip?

Steel-studded snow tires increase traction significantly on glare ice, but reinforced tire chains provide materially greater traction, according to University of Tennessee Professor E. A. Whitehurst, director of the Tennessee Highway Research Program, Knoxville.

Professor Whitehurst, who serves as director of the winter skid tests conducted annually by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards, based his conclusions on the Council's 1967 winter test project at Stevens Point, Wis.

New studded snow tires on the rear wheels reduced braking distances on ice by 19 per cent as compared with regular highway tires. Whitehurst said. "After 2,500 miles of wear, this improvement dropped to 13 per cent. With studded tires on all four wheels the braking distance was reduced by 31 per cent when new, and 17 per cent when used."

He pointed out that new reinforced tire chains on the rear wheels reduced braking distances on ice by 50 per cent as compared with regular highway tires without chains. "From the standpoint of traction or pulling ability on glare ice, studded snow tires developed about three times the pulling ability of regular tires," Whitehurst added. "Reinforced tire chains provided more than seven times the pulling ability of regular tires."

He reported that a somewhat surprising observation of the 1967 tests was that conventional snow tires (without studs) offered no advantage over regular tires in stopping on ice, although they do improve both traction and stopping ability in loosely packed snow. "One apparent reason for this new finding is that regular highway tires have shown steady and substantial improvement in their stopping ability on ice in recent years," Whitehurst explained. "Snow tires have also improved, but not enough to offset the outstanding improvement in regular tires."

He concluded his summary with this comment: "No matter what the driver uses to improve traction on snow and ice—snow tires, studded tires, or tire chains—in no instance can he stop or go nearly as well as with conventional highway tires on a dry pavement. This means that far slower than normal speeds are essential for safe driving on slippery pavements."

BELLY LAUGH seems to be enjoyed by "Tristan," a one-ton sea elephant at a Stuttgart, Germany, zoo. "Tristan" is 14 years old and is said to be a star attraction at the zoo where he performs tricks and romps with his trainer.

Cranberry Punch For The Holidays

Traditionally, the holiday season is the favorite time of the year for entertaining friends and family, and one of the most popular ways to celebrate is to have an open house.

Actually, it's the easiest and the most fun for the hostess. There's no need to worry about limiting the number of invitations because guests will be coming and going at different times throughout the afternoon or evening.

And the menu can be simple, but in keeping with the spirit of the season. Set a festive holiday table with Cranberry Wreath Punch and your favorite homemade Christmas cookies, and you'll be free to spend all the time with your guests.

Cranberry Wreath Punch is easy to make, too. Merely mix four simple ingredients: bottled cranberry juice, bottled lemon juice, a can of pineapple juice and gingerale.

Be sure to serve this punch well-chilled. To keep the punch bowl cool and for a little added holiday touch, make an ice wreath by freezing an ice ring with cherries and mint leaves in a salad ring mold.

To accompany the punch, serve guests a variety of your homemade cookies. Lemon Holiday Macaroons is a new and enticing recipe to add to your repertoire. This idea is also a simple one—a definite advantage during this hectic season.

CRANBERRY WREATH PUNCH
2 quarts cranberry juice
1 can (46 ounces) pineapple juice
1 cup bottled lemon juice
2 quarts gingerale
Ice

Chill all ingredients. Pour cranberry juice, pineapple juice and bottled lemon juice into a large punch bowl and stir. Add gingerale and ice; serve at once. Yield: 5 1/2 quarts or 36 five-ounce servings.

Note: If desired, omit 1 quart of the gingerale and add a fifth of gin, vodka or light rum.

LEMON HOLIDAY MACAROONS

1/2 can (2 1/2 cup) sweetened condensed milk
1/4 cup bottled lemon juice
1 package (7 ounces) flaked coconut
1 package (4 ounces) glazed cherries, chopped (about 2 1/2 cup)

Mix sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice. (Milk will thicken.) Add coconut and chopped cherries; mix. Form into 1-inch balls and place on greased cookie sheet, or drop by teaspoonfuls. Bake in a 200° F. oven about 30 minutes, or until slightly browned. Remove from cookie sheet immediately. Yield: about 2 1/2 dozen.

Planning For Bonsai In Your Christmas Greenery?

By JIM CROSSLEY

If African violets grow at the base of the growing-things-for-fun mountain, the bonsai is found at the bright and exhilarating crest.

Culturing those miniature trees in the manner of the Japanese is the polo and chess of gardening. Compared with them, even orchid culture is like cutting grass.

Christmas catalogues offer bonsai kits, some with seeds to grow, others with already started trees up to seven years old. So each year more people get into the care and nurturing of them.

We hope they understood they were getting into art as well as agriculture. To be successful in the hobby, frankly, is to become a sculptor working with living materials.

It isn't enough just keeping the trees alive. The challenge is to create a beauty of shape which is a tribute and obeisance to all the massive grace and splendor of full-sized trees.

First of all, the name is bonsai (singular and plural) which is roughly translated as "tray tree." It is pronounced "bone-sigh."

These are living trees that would grow many feet high if they were not kept artificially dwarfed.

In Japan, some work with natural dwarfs dug at the risk of sudden death from crevices on the mountain cliffs. Others start with young plants, keeping them small as they grow older. A third type is raised from seedlings or cuttings.

All are highly prized and some have reached 300 years of age, passed from one generation to another.

Because leaves do not miniaturize, types of plants with small foliage are generally chosen.

The trees are kept small (not over three feet) by growing them in shallow containers. There's a whole tradition in the shapes, colors and proper location for the trunk involved in the containers alone.

Roots are trimmed when the trees are repotted at carefully controlled intervals. The limbs are shaped by pinching back sprouting twigs.

Trunks are bent into many planned shapes by wrapping with burned copper wire. Believe it or not, the preferred Japanese method of "burning" is with rice straw exactly until the wire glows and shows a blue flame.

There is a proper way of mixing the soil, watering, fertilizing, handling in summer and protecting in winter. Hardy types grow outside and are brought in only for special occasions, though there are some which can be treated about like house plants.

Bonsai culture, even with the help of excellent books of guidance which are available, is not for the casual or faint-hearted. Leisure time, patience, perfectionism, a green thumb, an eye for the aesthetic—those are only some of the requirements.

THE TIES THAT BIND

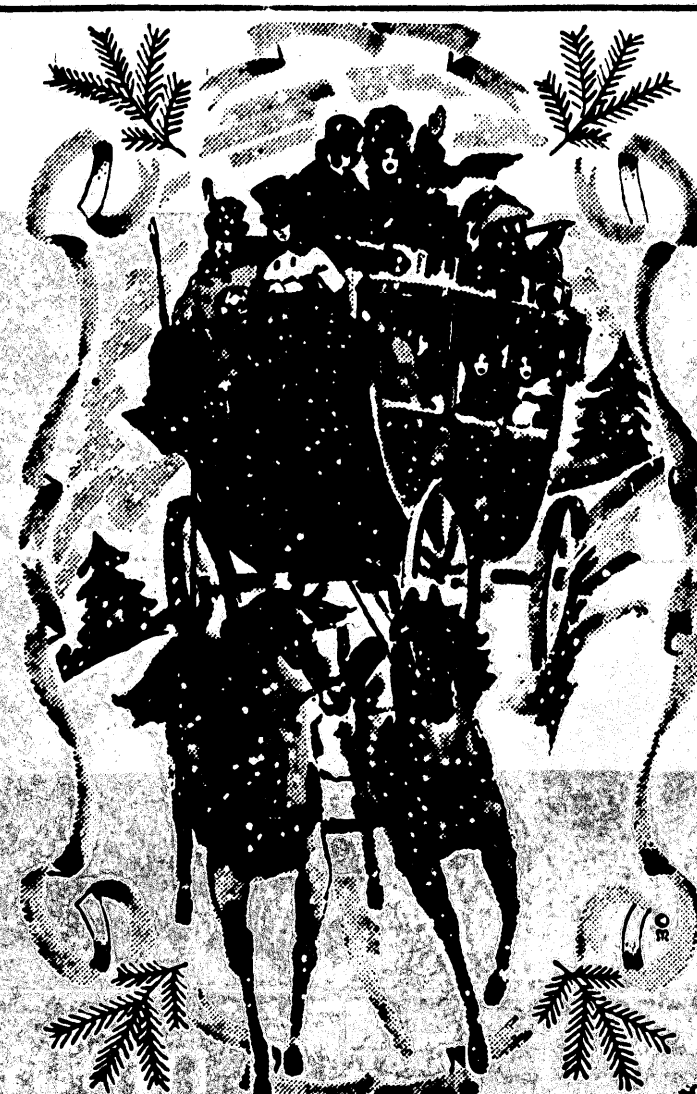

TOKYO (AP)—The president of Japan Uniform Center says people who wear neckties don't like to work. He says they wear them to conform to society.

A major Japanese newspaper, the Yomiuri Shimbun, interviewed Wajiro Kon on neckties and their introduction to Japan from the west.

He did not elaborate how a dislike for work was linked to the tie.

BEAUTIFUL EXAMPLE of bonsai photographed by the Brooklyn Botanic Garden which publishes a classic guide-book to their care.

Reindeer Only Deer That Have Been Domesticated

Santa's reindeer are proving a year-round blessing in Alaska.

Eskimos find the meat tasty, and the animal's milk provides cheese and vitamins. Skins fashion sleeping bags and clothing. One hide makes two parkas.

The Department of the Interior recently aided Eskimo reindeer herders by granting permits for eight and one half million acres of grazing tundra in the western and northwestern parts of Alaska.

Hunting Prohibited
Heretofore, ranch hands of the Far North have annually corralled about 42,000 reindeer in 16 private and two government herds, the National Geographic Society says. By encouraging sound range management and animal husbandry, the U. S. Government hopes to increase the existing herds. The reindeer are considered livestock, not big game. There is no open season on them.

If the program is successful, the Eskimos eventually may realize a sizable income from the export of surplus reindeer meat to the Far East and the contiguous 48 States. Some marketing experts predict annual sales of one million pounds of meat.

A vigorous selling campaign will be necessary, however. A government spokesman cautioned, "In the first place, there is the association with Santa Claus, placing reindeer in the same category as the family pet rabbit. But there are other obstacles, including high shipping costs to the lower 48 States."

Reindeer were introduced in Alaska from Siberia at the turn of the century as famine insurance for Eskimos dependent on dwindling caribou herds. The Eskimos immediately took to the gentler species of deer.

Later, the Canadian Government sponsored the migration of some 3,000 reindeer from Alaska's thriving herds to Eskimo lands on the frozen shore of Hudson Bay. The animals and herders crossed mountains, rivers, and swamps in temperatures plummeting to 50 degrees below zero to make the 1,200-mile trek.

Boys Delivered
The New York Times quoted a veteran herdsman at the end of the big drive: "My boys and I have been frostbitten and bruised, out on our feet and groggy, snow-blinded at times and starved, but the reindeer herd has just been delivered and that's the main thing, mister."

In Canada and Alaska, the reindeer stands only about three and a half feet high. But a big bull may stretch seven feet from nose to tail, and tip the scales at more than 300 pounds. Both males and females grow antlers that are shed once a year.

The reindeer is the only deer species that has been successfully domesticated. Some Alaskan reindeer draw sledges more efficiently than sled dogs.

In Europe, Lapps and other Scandinavians delight in reindeer races. A speedster in Finland once bested the track time of that country's fastest racehorse.

Turkey Cookery Sets Tenderness

Cook a whole turkey to an internal temperature of 185 degrees, and it will be tender and juicy. Cook a turkey roll to the same temperature and it will be tough and dry.

Recent research by a Michigan State University food scientist shows the "ideal" range for cooking turkey rolls is 160 to 165 degrees.

As internal cooking temperature increases above this level, the dark meat becomes more tender but it also becomes drier and less palatable. The white meat becomes both drier and tougher.

At an internal temperature of 190 degrees, the white meat becomes tougher than dark meat, according to Prof. L. E. Dawson, MSU food scientist, who conducted the experiment.

"Our research shows that the nutritional value of the meat essentially does not change as cooking temperature are increased, but the meat just doesn't taste as good," said Dr. Dawson. "Studies of meat composition showed basically no changes in protein content as cooking temperatures were increased."

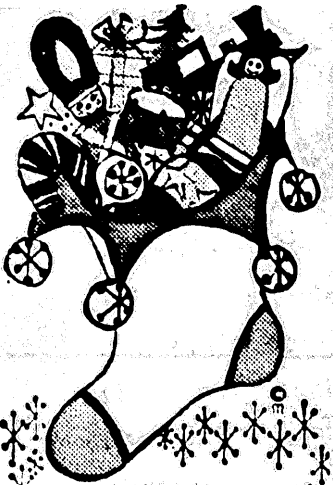

"In our experiments, we set the oven temperature at 225 degrees and cooked to an internal temperature of 160 degrees to get the best combination of juices and tenderness."

Turkey rolls must be cooked to at least 160 degrees before they can be labeled as "cooked" according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This temperature is high enough to kill any pathogenic bacteria that might be in the meat.

Down Chimney

The belief that Santa Claus comes down the chimney may come from an old Norse legend. The Norse believed that the goddess Hertha appeared in the fireplace and brought good luck to the home.

Mrs. Low started the first troop of American Girl Scouts in 1912.

CHRIST'S BIRTHPLACE looks like this today. About 50,000 persons are expected to crowd into the little town of Bethlehem for the Christmas pilgrimage.

Christ Child Got Gifts More Precious Than Gold

The first Christmas presents were worthy of the newborn Christ Child. The Wise Men brought two aromatic resins — frankincense and myrrh — that were prized as highly or more highly than gold.

Long before, man had honored his pagan gods with the fragrance of smoldering frankincense. Myrrh anointed the dead, supposedly cured the sick, and celebrated military victories, says the National Geographic Society.

Ancient Babylonians dedicated thousands of costly pounds of frankincense to their god Bel each year. Persian monarchs wore myrrh in their crowns. Egypt's fabled Queen Hatshepsut rubbed the resin on her body for fragrance.

Loaded With Marvels
Sculptured incense ships still set sail on the walls of Queen Hatshepsut's temple near Thebes. An inscription describes, "The loading of the ships very heavily with marvels of the country of Punt all goodly fragrant woods of God's Land, heaps of myrrh-resin, with fresh myrrh trees, with ebony and pure ivory, with green gold of Emu . . ."

The two resins brought enormous wealth to Arabia. Countless camel caravans jangled along incense roads from the Hadramawt region on Arabia's south coast to Mediterranean ports.

The South Arabians jealously guarded the source of their wealth with mystery and legend. Stores of frankincense and myrrh remained in the hands of a privileged few.

The Greek historian Herodotus wrote, "The whole of Arabia exhales a most delicious fragrance . . . the trees which bear the frankincense are guarded by winged serpents, small in size and of varied colors, whereof vast numbers hang about every tree."

Herodotus was right in one respect at least. Both frankincense and myrrh come from small trees. The aromatic gum exudes from incisions in the bark, hardening when exposed to air.

Bitter Taste
Frankincense, or olibanum, dries into semitransparent yellowish drops; myrrh turns into yellow or red-brown granules.

The pleasing odor and bitter taste of the two resins may have been the qualities that inspired their use as a cure-all.

The Roman naturalist Pliny listed frankincense as an antidote for hemlock poisoning. Contemporary physicians sent medical bills soaring by prescribing myrrh — an expensive wonder drug — for everything from ulcers to liver trouble.

If the treatment failed, myrrh also was used as an embalmment. The resin was mixed with oil and spices to prepare bodies for sacred burial.

According to the New Testament, Nicodemus wrapped the martyred Jesus in "a mixture of myrrh and aloes." (John 19:39) Thus, one of the gifts that had welcomed Christ into the world went with Him to the tomb.

Three U.S. presidents once served in Congress from Tennessee — Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk and Andrew Johnson.

To our wonderful customers, our sincerest thanks, and our wishes for a wonderful Christmas . . . brimming with laughter and good cheer.

SANTA and the PIGWIDGEN

By LUCRECE BEALE

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

CLAUS rushed back to the castle to delay the contest. The Pigwidgeon was impatient. He knew only he could lift the box of magic because it was screwed to the top of the North Pole. He was anxious to defeat Claus at last.

"But give me a change of clothes!" begged Claus. "What I am wearing is not suitable for so serious a contest."

"Oh, very well," said the Pigwidgeon crossly, and he ordered clothes brought to Claus. Nothing large enough to fit could be found. Finally the pygmies discovered a bolt of red cloth. Quickly they cut out and stitched together a red suit. It was a fine and handsome outfit but, unfortunately, too large. Claus stuffed several pillows under his coat to make it fit. Then, looking like a roly poly red rubber ball, he followed the Pigwidgeon to the lake.

The tiny box sat on top of the ice. Claus bent over. He wrapped his hands around the box. He gave a mighty heave. The box did not move. Claus pried. He pushed. He pulled. The box did not move.

The Pigwidgeon cried, "You have lost! Now you will turn to stone!"

Claus shook his head and heaved once more. Suddenly the ice split; there was a snap below the water and Claus raised the box high over his head.

The Pigwidgeon turned pale. "You have lifted the North Pole itself!" he gasped incredulously. Claus smiled. He knew that it was Patrick Tweedleknives who had done it. The elf had broken under the ice near shore and had swum underwater to the pole. All the time Claus was heaving, Tweedleknives was under the ice sawing on the pole until the tip broke free.

The Pigwidgeon said mournfully, "All my power is now yours."

"And what of the curse that has put all the children in the land to sleep?" asked Claus. "And the curse that keeps all elves underground?"

"You may break them," said the Pigwidgeon. "The power is yours. My people are yours. This land is yours. But there is one thing you must know: No human being who has come to this land can leave. Though you will live forever you can never go home again."

"Never?"

"Once each year and then only if you have a message to give."

Claus was very sad. What was the good of living forever and having so much magic power if he could not do what he had loved the most: to sit in his little workshop at home and make toys for the children of the village?

Tweedleknives appeared. He tugged at Claus' big red trousers. "It is a good land," he said gruffly. "The elves can move here from their underground caves. The pygmies can stay here. We can all make toys and once a year you can take them not only to your own village but to children everywhere. All the world will love you and call you Saint Nicholas or Santa Claus."

"Merry Christmas to all!"

Claus brightened. "I can fill a sled with toys and the reindeer can fly me," he said happily. "I will send for Mrs. Claus and she can make sugar plums and sweet meats to stuff in stockings."

"And always wear red, because that red suit has brought us luck," said Tweedleknives. "But," said the Pigwidgeon, "what of the message you must give in order to visit the world?"

"That's easy," said Claus. "I shall deliver our toys on Christmas Eve and my message will be 'Merry Christmas!'" And that is the tale of how Saint Nicholas came to be the Santa Claus we know today. It may be true or it may not. It really doesn't matter. The message is the same.

Wells Woman Writes From South America:

How About A Jump-Up For Christmas In Gay Guyana?

Mrs. Tom Brayak of Bark River shares her interest in a letter from Mrs. Paul Kattenburg, the former Mary Louise Clark of Wells, with Press readers. Mrs. Kattenburg's husband is with the U. S. Embassy in Guyana, South America. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Phil Clark of Wells. She writes:

The year 1967 was an eventful one for me, as after four and a half years of comfortable suburban living in Vienna, Virginia, Paul was assigned abroad again, this time South America. He left in late January for Georgetown, Guyana, formerly British Guiana. His position is DCM in the Embassy.

I remained in Vienna until June and the close of the school year and then left for Guyana. We had an interesting trip, stopping in San Juan and Trinidad where we have friends. Trinidad is a delightful vacation spot. The steel bands and limbo dancing were a wonderful change.

My daughter, Jeanne, is attending a Guyanese-English convent school, as the American school here is very small and has only the lower grades. She has not found the change too difficult and hasn't complained about wearing a uniform or even the British type of discipline. All the young people here wear mod clothes (London influence) and Jeanne's time is well occupied with sewing, movies, style shows and horse back riding.

She rode in public at the last race meeting and also had the pleasure of riding with the prime minister. The races are very special here, with tea served between the races and everyone dressed in their finest. Reminds me of "My Fair Lady" in slightly less elegant style.

The three oldest boys remained in the States to work, and, in the fall, Clark returned to the University of North Carolina. Rick began college at North Carolina School of Architecture and John is married and working for TWA in California.

Our youngest son, Charlie, has adjusted well to the change. He loves to ride, swims frequently and attends the little American school operated by missionaries.

Guyana is an interesting country, newly independent, located on the northeast shoulder of South America. The people are pleasant and hospitable. They are of varied racial origin: African, East Indian, British, Portuguese, Oriental and Amerindian, with a considerable degree of mixture. While Guyana is fairly large and supposedly rich in natural resources, it is still greatly underdeveloped and relatively very poor.

It is only within the last couple of years that the government has become stable and people have had enough confidence to begin investing and expanding businesses. Most of the people live along the coast and in Georgetown, which has a population of 150,000. The town area is small, and many of the buildings and houses are of wood, and as such give the town a temporary or frontier appearance.

The city has several broad tree-lined avenues which are attractive. The old, large colonial houses standing on pillars with their many shutter-covered windows are most colorful. Many of these houses are nearly a hundred years old, and while they are comfortable to live in, they are difficult to maintain.

Our house is rather new and different, as it is built on the ground level and is brick. It is fairly spacious with five bedrooms, four baths and an upstairs den. Because it is so large, I have a number of guests off and on—that is United States guests. There are no good hotels in Georgetown and few good restaurants. Our house is entirely furnished and staffed by the Embassy, so we tend to become a bit of a hotel.

We are able to buy just about everything we need but prices are high. Since the currency has been devaluated, this may be even more so. There are at least three large British department stores and several specialty shops.

In Georgetown there is very little in the way of recreational facilities. Most entertaining is done at home, leading to an active social life. Most frequent are the big dances or "Jump-Ups" held several times a month to steel band or combo calypso music. The dancing is wild and expressive.

Aside from a few swimming pools, a nine hole golf course, a number of movie theaters and the local "theater" guild, there is not much else to do. However, the activities the city does have are readily accessible; distance are short, and working hours are shorter.

We are planning to meet our sons Clark and Rick in Florida at Christmas, but we will miss John. It has been a long time since we have all been together. It will be a very different type of Christmas. Greetings to all from the Kattenburgs.

Don't Let Kids Alone At Xmas

The Christmas season can be a happy one if parents will heed this warning:
 Never leave little children at home alone—even for a minute.

Fire records are jammed with reports—year after year—of mothers who left small children "only for a minute" to buy a loaf of bread at the store, on the corner, and returned to find their homes in flames.

The National Fire Protection Association lists "matches and children" in fifth place among the leading causes of fires.

There were 69,400 fires caused by "matches and children" in 1966, and they caused property damage totaling $51,600,000.

This was a sharp rise over the 58,400 fires attributed to the same cause in 1965, when resulting property damage totaled $38,600,000.

To protect your children and property, the Association suggested, follow these rules:

- 1 — Never leave little children at home alone.
- 2 — Keep matches out of reach of children.
- 3 — Impress upon them that fire is dangerous, and to keep away from it.
- 4 — As soon as they are old enough to comprehend, explain to them if fire occurs, they should get out of the house quickly — and tell a neighbor that their house is on fire.
- 5 — Emphasize to older children the urgency of rounding up younger brothers and sisters and getting them out of the house fast in case of fire—but not at the risk of their own lives!
- 6 — If a baby sitter is employed, or if children are left with a responsible teen-ager or adult, make sure the older person knows what to do in a fire emergency.

Pine Yule Tree Being Developed

Science has found the answer for those who like an exceptionally good looking white pine for a Christmas tree.

The answer is the limber pine, a very close relative of Michigan's state tree, the eastern white pine.

The research story of the limber pine began in 1959 when Dr. John Andresen, then on the faculty of Michigan State University and now chairman of the Forestry Department at Southern Illinois University, collected limber pine seed from many different places in the Rocky Mountains region. The trees from these seeds were then planted at two of MSU's Agricultural Experiment Stations: The W. K. Kellogg Forest near Battle Creek and the Fred W. Russ Forest near Cassopolis.

"The growth differences among these many different trees were remarkable," reports Jonathan W. Wright, MSU forester who is continuing research with the limber pine. "We found that the fastest growing trees come from northern Arizona and northern New Mexico. They grow 1 1/2 to 2 feet each year."

"These trees have the nice, soft foliage which is characteristic of all white pines. But the needles are thicker and more dense. Also, these trees are bluer than Michigan's native eastern white pine."

"Several Michigan Christmas tree growers are already interested in this tree, especially for their customers who want a tree which looks like an extra healthy, vigorous white pine," Wright explains that limber pine might also be valuable to the state's timber industry since its wood is similar to that of the eastern white pine and can be used for doors, windows, shelves, etc. It doesn't warp, it doesn't split and it holds nails well.

"We don't plan to plant the Rocky Mountains species as such," says Wright, "but we do want to produce hybrids. We'd like to cross the species from northern Arizona and northern New Mexico with one from the Himalayan Mountains of Asia. This cross can be easily made, and the hybrids are known to grow faster than either species by itself. We should have this hybrid in a few more years."

White House Once Banned Yule Tree

"The fresh fragrance of an evergreen forest will be found in three-fourth of American homes this year," according to Thomas P. Brogan, regional manager, American Forest Products Industries, Inc., Chicago.

Legend claims that St. Boniface, the English missionary, had vagabond tribes replace their sacred oak with an evergreen tree. Another credits Martin Luther, the Protestant reformer (1483-1546) with setting up a balsam tree decked with candles to resemble the star-bright night. For over two centuries the Germans alone made the custom of a Christmas tree part of their yuletide celebrations.

The tradition of a Christmas tree began in the United States when Hessian mercenaries fighting in the American Revolution introduced it to settlers. Historical records indicate that in 1804 a balsam Christmas tree was used at Fort Dearborn, Ill., the site of Chicago. Eastern Pennsylvania German settlers began using trees in 1816 and by the early 1840's decorated pines had become an established Christmas season custom.

In 1851 the first commercial sale of Christmas trees was made by Mark Carr of the lower Catskill Mountains who sold two ox-sled loads of balsam in New York City.

President Pierce started the official White House Christmas tree in 1856. This custom was interrupted by Theodore Roosevelt, the ardent conservationist, who thought it was a wasteful use of a forest tree. Discovering that his two sons had smuggled one into their White House bedroom, he sought the advice of Clifford Pinchot, the Chief of the Division of Forestry, (later the United States Forest Service.)

Pinchot assured Roosevelt that the proper harvesting of Christmas trees was good for the forests because thinning gave the other trees room to grow. An overprotected pine forest stagnates and becomes a biological desert as wildlife (such as deer) need the browse provided by harvests. Christmas trees are consistent with good forest, soil and water conservation whether on natural forests or established plantations.

After this consultation, President Roosevelt reinstated the White House tree, a custom which has been uninterrupted since.

Printing Week

LANSING (AP)—Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken has proclaimed the week of Jan. 14-20 as "Printing Week" in Michigan in honor of the printing and graphic arts industries of the state.

Daily or Sunday newspapers are delivered to about two out of every three American households.

Michigan Free Of Brucellosis

Federal agricultural officials have recognized Michigan as brucellosis-free after reports proved that every county in the state had achieved this goal. Brucellosis is a costly disease of cattle that may be transmitted to humans.

Last spring the state's swine industry welcomed announcement of Michigan's federal status as hog cholera-free.

As recently as 10 years ago, Michigan had more than 5,000 brucellosis infected herds with 14,000 reactor animals. Previous to that time, brucellosis incidence in cattle had been so high that the disease was common in humans.

Only 10 other states are brucellosis-free and federal officials predict that it may take until 1975 or longer to accomplish eradication on a national scale. Wisconsin is the only other Midwest state certified.

The Three Coins of Christmas

By MORT REED

Finally, after all these years, someone has decided to commemorate Christmas on a coin. Until the Franklin mint struck these pieces, nothing approaching the religious theme of this holiday season was ever attempted. Each is struck in solid nickel silver and measures 39mm in diameter or approximately the size of an English crown.

The Franklin mint is headed by Gilroy Roberts, who is best known for his portrait of Kennedy on the U. S. half-dollar.

Robert personally designed the "Christmas Carolers" coin with a rather unusual composition. The scene on the obverse shows a group of carolers in front of a house and the scene on the reverse shows the same carolers as they might appear through the window from the inside of the house. In effect, Roberts has utilized a coin to depict the same picture from two different angles.

The second coin in the series is a copy of the sterling silver "Franklin Mint Peace Medal" that will be presented to all delegates to the United Nations this year.

It was designed and sculptured by Richard Baldwin and features the word "PEACE" in 29 different languages on the obverse. The reverse contains a bas-relief depiction of "They Shall Beat Their Swords into Plowshares."

The Franklin mint struck Christmas coins in 1965 and 1966 but specimens of these back issues are coveted collectors' items and hard to come by. However, a limited edition of the 1967 series has been made available to the public, each in a satin-finished Christmas card and enclosed in an envelope.

Cord Of Wood Heap Big Pile

Make sure you really want a cord of fireplace wood if you order a cord. That's the advice of the Michigan Department of Agriculture's weights and measures experts. A real cord is one heap big heap of wood, and it just might take over all of your garage space from now until spring. Only correct definition of a cord of wood is a unit equal to a stack four by four by eight feet.

What most people really pay for when they order fireplace wood is something less than a legal cord, not that they're being cheated, since they usually get the amount of wood they pay for. Over the years the term cord has been mistakenly applied to a pile of wood four feet high, eight feet long, but only as wide as fire-wood, about 16 to 20 inches.

Don't Let Your Yule Tree Dry

More than 50 million Americans bought Christmas trees as a part of their observance of the holiday season.

A Christmas tree, improperly selected and cared for, can be a serious fire hazard, says the American Insurance Association. It offers these tips in the interest of safety.

- 1 — Use only a fresh tree. Feel the needles on a branch of the tree you are planning to buy. Stroke the needles with your hand. If needles drop from the branch, the tree is not fresh.
- 2 — If possible, keep your tree outside until the day before Christmas, and stand it in a pail of water. The tree will "drink" water, and the water will keep the tree fresh and green.
- 3 — When you bring the tree inside the house or apartment to decorate it, put the tree up in the coolest part of the room — away from radiators, hot air ducts, and fireplaces.
- 4 — To help keep your tree fresh longer, you should use a tree stand with a metal container that can be filled with water. The container should be filled with water immediately, and then checked daily to determine when more water should be added.
- 5 — Only tree decorations made of glass, metal or some other non-combustible material should be placed on the Christmas tree.
- 6 — Check Christmas tree lights before placing them on the tree to be sure they are in good operating condition. Strings of lights with frayed wires or faulty sockets should be replaced with new ones, and they should bear the "UL" label, which signifies that the products have been tested and listed in Underwriters' Laboratories.
- 7 — If you set up an electric train at Christmas time, place it in a part of a room where the tracks are away from the tree. A spark from a toy train can cause a Christmas fire.
- 8 — Christmas tree lights should be turned off at night. And this is important: Never leave Christmas lights on when everyone is away from home.
- 9 — Check your Christmas tree frequently to be sure it is not too dry. Check tree needles near lights and if the needles feel brittle, change the position of the light.
- 10 — If you have a metal tree, do not decorate it with Christmas lights which could cause a short-circuit. Instead use off-the-tree lighting.
- 11 — If the tree becomes dry, take it down immediately and discard it outside. Most families make it a practice to take down the tree the day after New Year's as a fire prevention precaution.

'Yes, There's Santa' Girl

NORTH CHATHAM, N.Y. (AP) — Seventy years ago, a worried eight-year-old girl asked the New York Sun to "please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

That question and the editorial reply of Sept. 21, 1897, have immortalized her name—Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas looks forward to spending the holiday with her large family, including great grandchildren.

Virginia wrote the Sun that "some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, 'If you see it in the Sun, it's so.'"

And Virginia saw it in the Sun — "Yes Virginia, there is a Santa Claus" — in an editorial written by Francis P. Church.

"He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist..." it said. "How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias."

Mrs. Douglas hasn't stopped believing.

After being with children for 43 years as a public school teacher and principal, and now as a great grandmother, "I still can't help but see it as they do."

Like the Virginia of 1897, Mrs. Douglas is looking forward to many surprises this Christmas.

"I am very fortunate," she said, "to have a wonderful daughter who anticipates all the things I want."

Mrs. Douglas, a widow, now lives with her only daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Temple in this picturesque hamlet southeast of Albany. She has been ill for the last few years and her doctor has told her to avoid excitement.

But she still finds her large family very rewarding, and is particularly happy to have her youngest relatives around her.

Mars Colonies Foreseen By Space Experts In '80s

Explorers and colonists from the earth one day will live and work on the windy sands of Mars.

This is the expectation of many present-day scientists. Astronomer Carl Sagan, writing about Mars in December National Geographic, says the United States could be ready for inter-planetary travel by the 1980's. Mars is only 34,600,000 miles from the earth at its closest approach.

Dr. Sagan reports that revolutionary improvements in astronomy are shaping a new portrait of Mars "that differs in many ways from the ideas held by astronomers only a few years ago."

Mars' cratered surface, revealed by Mariner IV in its historic flyby in 1965, startled some scientists. A second and closer Mariner flyby is set for 1969.

Sloping Landscape

An eight-month flight will bring men eventually to Mars. Dr. Sagan, assistant professor of astronomy at Harvard University, conjectures, "They will wander over a gently sloping landscape marked by sand dunes and by enormous numbers of eroded, flat-bottomed craters."

Dr. Sagan says, "We know that the first men who land on Mars will be able to move about with comparative ease. Mars has only about half the diameter and a tenth the mass of earth; its gravitational pull is therefore lower, and a man on Mars will weigh only about 40 per cent of his weight on earth."

"Those first explorers, we also know, will need protection against the lack of oxygen, ultraviolet radiation from the sun, low atmospheric pressure, and extremes of cold."

"At the same time they may find Mars the most hospitable and earthlike of all our neighbors in the solar system. There they will find wind and water; carbon dioxide and sunlight; clouds, rolling hills, and deserts; winter frosts and balmy summer afternoons."

The Martian day (24 hours and 37 minutes) and the tilt of its axis (about 24 degrees) strikingly resemble those of the earth. Hence the climates are similar, though Martian nights are colder.

Possibility Of Life

Even before man lands on

Mars, new space technology promises to answer the age-old question: Does earth's neighbor harbor life or spin through eternity as a sterile desert?

Dr. Sagan says experiments in a number of laboratories suggest that the Martian environment does not exclude life. Mars' tenuous atmosphere is composed largely of carbon dioxide with a trace of water vapor; its thin air lacks oxygen and ozone.

"In every sample of terrestrial soil," Dr. Sagan points out, however, "we have found varieties of micro-organisms that survive the Martian conditions, some indefinitely."

Mars' desertlike surface seems to contain huge amounts of limonite, a mineral made up of iron oxides that absorb ultraviolet light. By hiding under limonite grains, organisms could avoid radiation.

Dr. Sagan imagines odd-looking Martian plants and animals that grow glassy shells to protect themselves against ultraviolet rays, and plants with tough outer leaves that close at sundown to protect the buds from the intense cold of Martian nights.

Stockings Will Hang Sunday

"The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, in hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there."

So wrote Clement E. Moore in 1822. And so it will be in most homes this Christmas Eve, at least where there are small children, at least in North America, and even though St. Nicholas has become Santa Claus.

The custom seems to come from Great Britain. There, too, children hang their stockings by the fireplace, hoping that Father Christmas will fill them with Christmas treats. In other lands the customs vary.

On December 6!

In Belgium and The Netherlands, people exchange gifts on Dec. 6, St. Nicholas' Day. A man dressed in the rich robes of a bishop represents the saint. World Book Encyclopedia says. He questions the children about their behavior during the year and promises to return during the night with gifts for the good children.

In Holland the children fill wooden shoes with cookies and candies for the saint and leave them on the doorstep. He takes the goodies and leaves toys and other gifts.

Shoes At Door

In France, children put their shoes on the doorstep on Christmas Eve so the Christ Child (or Father Christmas) can fill them with gifts. In Italy, on the eve of Epiphany, or Twelfth Night, a sort of aged fairy queen named La Befana comes down the chimney with gifts for the children.

Most children in South America believe that the Wise Men bring them Christmas gifts. Children in Brazil find gifts in their shoes on Christmas morning. On the eve of Epiphany, some people leave water and hay on the doorstep for the Wise Men's camels.

Christians in China and Japan observe Christmas customs that are familiar to us. The Chinese version of Santa Claus has a Chinese name, which varies according to the dialect. And in Japan, Santa Claus is called Santa Claus.

Vacant Chair

Polish Christians fast the day before Christmas, then have a feast at nightfall, says World Book. A vacant chair for the Christ Child always stands at the festive table.

Christmas Tree Ship Tragedy Is Recalled

MANISTIQUE—On a dull November morning in 1912, Capt. Herman Schuenemann was buying supplies at a local grocery store for his last trip of the year to Chicago with a cargo of Christmas trees.

At the same time, his three master schooner, the Rouse Simmons, was being loaded at the dock at Thompson, a few miles west on the Lake Michigan shore.

"How's the Christmas tree business?" the grocer, Joseph Van Dyke, asked Schuenemann with more than casual interest. Van Dyke, asked Schuenemann, providing about $900 in food and cash to the captain while woodsmen cut spruce in Schoolcraft County.

The tall, 41-year-old captain with the black mustache replied, "All right I think. We've cut some nice trees, but we're a little late this season."

Watched Unloading

Returning to Thompson, Capt. Schuenemann watched the unloading of trees from flatcars of the "Haywire Road" — the Manistique & Lake Superior Railroad, which had tracks running from the Thompson dock north through the woods country as far as Shingleton.

After checking to see that the cargo was well distributed and glancing again at the threatening late afternoon sky, he shouted the order for the 125 foot schooner to set sail.

The order shocked the master of the ship, Capt. Charles Nelson, who was Schuenemann's partner, and he argued in vain for delay of the departure. Just two weeks before, a storm had caused wide destruction on the Great Lakes and another gale was rising.

Ship On Charter

But Capt. Schuenemann had chartered the 200-ton Rouse Simmons from Capt. Manus Bonner of Beaver Island, and he was anxious to get his cargo to Chicago.

The ship was cut from its moorings, a tug pulled it away from the dock and the accelerating wind caught its sails and carried it into open water. The date was Nov. 22.

The sailing was the last for the Rouse Simmons.

Carrying a shorthanded crew of 15 and the wife of Capt. Nelson, the schooner traveled 100 miles of storm-tossed water before dawn. By morning the gale had backed into the east and the lake was hidden by a raging blizzard.

Canvas In Ribbons

That day, the Rouse Simmons was sighted off Keweenaw, Wis., flying distress signals. The Keweenaw Coast Guard station telephoned the Two Rivers station, where a 34-foot power launch was available. For five hours, coastguardsmen searched the twilight mists and murky darkness.

In a lull in the storm, they sighted the schooner — a sorry sight with her canvas slashed to ribbons and her rigging and hull covered with ice.

The coastguardsmen headed toward her, but before they could cover half the distance the storm set in again. The ship vanished.

Bottle Found

On Dec. 13, newspaper dispatches from Sheboygan reported that someone had picked up a bottle containing a message written on a page from the Rouse Simmons' log and signed by Herman Schuenemann.

It read, "Friday—everybody good-by. I guess we are all through. Sea washed over our deck load Thursday. During the night the small boat was washed over. Leaking bad. Ingvald and Steve fell overboard."

Thursday. God help us."

There was some doubt that the message was authentic, since no one with those names was known to have been connected with the crew.

However, Christmas trees washed ashore and others that snagged fishermen's nets evidenced the ship's fate.

About 12 years later on April 23, 1924, a wallet which had been Schuenemann's was washed ashore at Two Rivers point.

Second In Family

Three years later, at about the same spot, another bottle was washed up. It contained a note signed "Nelson" that read: "These lines are written at 10:30 p.m. Schooner R.S. ready to go down about 20 miles southeast of Two Rivers Point, between 15 and 20 miles off shore. All hands lashed to one line. Good-by."

Capt. Schuenemann was the second in his family to lose his life when a schooner laden with Christmas trees was lost in a storm.

The Schuenemann family had been carrying trees to Chicago on the last sailing of the season since the early 1880's.

In 1898, Capt. Schuenemann's brother, August, and a small schooner with a cargo of evergreens were lost in a storm off Glencoe, Ill. Herman Schuenemann then took over the trade.

Sent By Rail

Despite the Rouse Simmons tragedy, the Schuenemanns had Christmas trees in their lot on Chicago's N. Clark St., the next season. The captain's widow, Barbara, had 20,000 trees shipped by rail from the woods near Manistique.

The next year, she chartered a schooner, the Fearless, and with her oldest daughter, Elise, and a crew of 10, went to Thompson for another cargo of evergreens. But in succeeding years she relied mainly on shipments by rail.

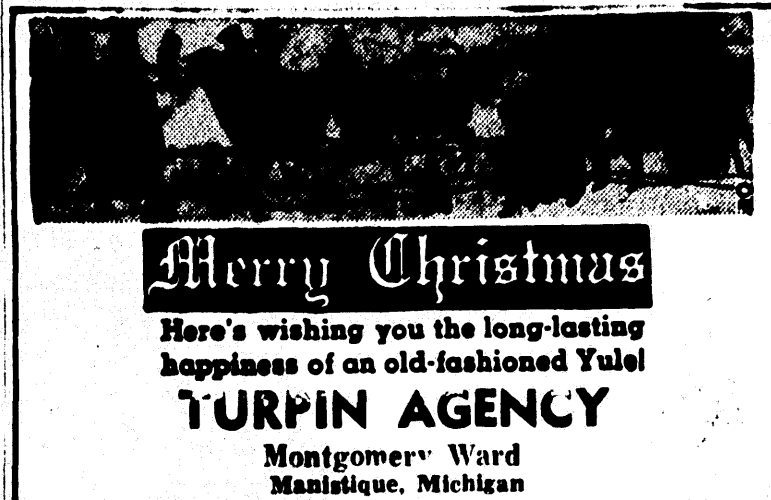

The Schuenemanns' Christmas tree business died with the captain's widow in 1933.

ALL GOOD WISHES FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON

The friends are gone, the carols sung,
And silence reigns now bells have rung,
The meal's complete, the gifts exchanged,
And 'round the fire this group arranged,
The family, like they've always done,
In silence, happy, warm and one
May every year ahead for men
See groups like this meet so again,
This is, in truth, what Christmas means,
And what is meant in one Star's beams,
Each man and woman, girl and boy,
Who wish for you the Season's joy!

DON'T TURN CHRISTMAS GLITTER into New Year litter. The holiday season is crisis time in the national war against litter. The Keep America Beautiful people are gloomily predicting that unless Americans this year make a conscientious effort to hold clutter down, the aftermath of festivities will be nine million cubic feet of discarded trees, decorations, boxes and gift wrappings dumped on streets and countryside — enough to fill Santa's bag three million times.

"I bet you don't remember the first Christmas tree we had together," Bob said to Anita.

"Wasn't it a pineapple decorated with candy?" Anita said. "You see, Bob is my manager, so he has always been able to go with me on these tours. That was my very first Christmas away from my family in Oklahoma. Now our children are at the age when they would miss us if we were away at Christmas."

Anita is a wife and mother first and a career woman second.

Foreign Students Guests Of Church

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sunday school rooms at Charlotte's First Presbyterian Church have been converted into dormitories for 75 foreign students with no relatives to visit over the holidays.

The church is one of 13 in the South and East setting up International Houses. All reportedly have had to turn away students who heard about the program through their embassies.

While in Charlotte, the 75 international visitors will be guests of several churches and civic groups through New Year's Day.

Mica Assures White Christmas

Snow or shine, there will always be a White Christmas in the United States so long as mica holds out.

The versatile mineral is a source of the artificial snow that brightens Christmas decorations.

Mica has helped actors' careers, too. Countless Hollywood heroes have mushed their way to stardom through raging blizzards of mica.

Household Mineral
Simulating snow is only one of mica's many uses, the National Geographic Society says. For example, this mineral adds a sparkle to paint and wallpaper, coats the inside of automobile tires, and backs asphalt roofing.

Mica acts as a thermal and electrical insulator in scores of home appliances. The breakfast toast is browned by red-hot wires wrapped around thin plates of mica.

The term mica refers to a family of silicate minerals that have crystallized directly from molten rock. The micas take the form of paper-thin sheets tightly pressed in a hexagonal crystal. The sheets can be easily stripped from one another; they suggest the pages of a book.

Mica's color varies with chemical composition; it ranges from black to crystal transparency. Seen through a microscope, one of the commonest micas—muscovite—blazes with intense color.

Russian explorers first discovered muscovite in Siberia some 275 years ago. They named it in honor of Moscow—even then the greatest commercial and industrial center in the country—which they had left to investigate the mineral-rich region.

Dazzled Foreign Courts
For years Russian envoys dazzled foreign courts with mirrors and other objects made from the material. The crystal's fame spread through many lands.

Bright micas especially appealed to India's princes. Glistening sheets decorated palace walls. Mica sequins glittered from the skirts of dancing girls.

At the turn of the century, Indian mica came into increasingly heavy demand by manufacturers of electrical equipment. The mountains of Bihar and Madras in eastern India still produce some of the best mica in the world.

In World War II, America's industrial need for mica was so urgent that hundreds of thousands of pounds were flown directly from open-pit mines in India by the Air Transport Command. The high-grade mica was indispensable for vacuum tube spacers, radio condensers, and other vital electrical components.

After the war, the mineral held its position as one of India's chief exports. Today India stands first in high-grade sheet mica production, and supplies about 80 per cent of world demand.

Music Explosion Crosses Nation

Americans played, listened to and spent more money for music in 1967 than ever before in their history.

The sound of music will reach an all-time crescendo in volume this Christmas with sales of music instruments as well as music-listening products soaring to new highs in stores, according to the National Association of Music Merchants.

Spurred by continuing rock 'n' roll popularity which has sent sales of guitars and drums as well as portable phonographs, records and transistor radios to new peaks, stores will exceed last year's retail sales by seven per cent in 1967, reports Jack J. Wainger, NAMM president.

Average spending of Americans for music instruments and music listening products will exceed $26 per capita in 1967. At least $1 out of every $5 spent for recreation goes for music in the nation. "This represents more spending per person for music than the rest of the world put together," notes Wainger.

"The impact of a mammoth cultural boom, increasing the incomes, longer life span, amounts of leisure time, larger growing school band programs and improved communications all add up to a music explosion throughout the land," he added.

More youngsters are taking music lessons today than any time in the past, Wainger points out. One out of four children play or are learning to play an instrument, more than twice as many as 20 years ago.

Industry growth has been remarkable considering that manufacture of musical instruments in volume began little more than a century ago when Heinrich Steinway and three sons established the piano firm of Steinway & Son in 1853. Listening to reproduced music as a recreation dates back exactly 90 years to 1877 when Thomas Edison first recorded and reproduced sound on a phonograph using tinfoil cylinders.

Music will ring up $6 billion in sales in 1967 for music-making and music-listening products, sparked by phenomenal interest in popular music that has penetrated every phase of modern living.

"Today's youth listens to music wherever they go—bedroom to beach—and match that never-ending listening with a universal desire to play something, whether it's the ubiquitous guitar or the classic piano," noted Wainger.

The guitar continues as the single most popular instrument in sales with the total expected to exceed 2,000,000 in 1967, but new trends in the rock field are bringing increasing interest in electronic versions of the harmonica and tambourine. Amplification is a "must" today with young musicians, even in the music classes now being offered in nearly every high school and college in the country.

Radios are the prime listening device for all generations of America, whether in cars on the road (there are now 64,500,000 radios in cars) or at home where 99½ per cent of all homes wired for electricity have radios. The number of radios in use in the U. S. actually exceeds the population of 200 million by 62,700,000.

Phonographs, too, are a booming segment of the music industry with the total number operating expected to reach 60,000,000 by the end of the year. Record sales are expected to exceed $850 million this year.

Candles Burn 400 Hours

HONG KONG — (NEA) — People who put aside Christmas ornaments, gadgets and gewgaws after the festive season for use another year may find something unique for their collections in a regular-sized candle that burns 400 hours.

The burning time of a candle does not depend on length, but composition. Artisans here have devised the correct (and secret) combination of beeswax, acid and raw wax that gives a nine-inch taper glow power for the equivalent of two months of winter evenings.

Long-burning candles are not the only ones from the British Crown Colony which shed their light around the world. More than 200 varieties, from one inch to 20 inches high, one-half inch to five inches in diameter, are manufactured in Hong Kong. They are exported to 32 countries.

Among the more popular are the embossed type of Austrian design, gold leaf candles, frost candles, flower taper candles and waxen bowls. Hong Kong also specializes in the making of candle figurines of Chinese goddesses, some handmade, others molded.

While candlemaking is an ancient art, like many other industries here, it did not get started until about 10 years ago, and then on a limited scale with local manufacturers producing solely for domestic purposes.

Yet, like many other industries involved in the Crown

Colony's dramatic industrial revolution, candlemaking rapidly expanded. In 1959 Hong Kong Chemical Enterprises started producing for export figured candles by molding wax into human figures and animals of Chinese design. Today Hong Kong candles also are fashioned after designs from continental Europe and Japan. Hong Kong hand-made candles are about 30 per cent cheaper than other Asian products.

Three of the six registered candle factories in Hong Kong distribute internationally. Most manufacturing is done by hand, giving the product a polished look which no machine is capable of doing.

The biggest supplier of paraffin and beeswax, prime ingredients, is Indonesia.

The United States is by far the largest importer of Hong Kong candles. The United Kingdom, Canada, Germany and the Netherlands also are large consumers of the soft light from the Orient.

Wassail Can Make Your Holiday Parties Sing

Wassail, the oldest known Christmas season beverage, is just the thing for the hostess who's looking for something new for her holiday party.

A traditional English yule drink since the 7th Century, the wassail is a flavorful and moderate combination of sherry, beer, sugar, citrus, nutmeg and ginger. And it's easy to make.

Here are the ingredients for the wassail bowl:

3 quarts warm beer
1/2 pound of granular sugar
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
1 teaspoon powdered nutmeg
24 ounces of Cream Sherry
3 slices of lemon

Add the sugar to one quart of beer in a bowl. Then stir in the nutmeg and ginger. Add the sherry and two more quarts of warm beer. Float the slices of lemon in the bowl.

A great deal of holiday tradition has grown up around wassail. The word itself has come to mean Christmas caroling from house to house. Carolers usually were given a dram of wassail in reward for their singing.

Wassail meant "to your health," which is probably the original toast. The word was introduced in England by the ancient Scandinavians who raided the coast early in the Christian era. But the drink apparently antedates the written word in English history.

Ski Buffs Asked To Drive Safely

LANSING—As ski enthusiasts throughout the nation headed for the hills, a word of warning was issued by Gerald W. Shipman, executive secretary of the Michigan State Safety Commission.

"We hope skiers will ski on our slopes and not on our highways," he said. "It's unfortunate that the very ingredient—snow—that is essential for skiing, is also the ingredient that makes highways treacherous."

Shipman pointed out that the best skiing weather often coincides with the worst driving conditions, and urged drivers to prepare their cars accordingly before embarking on a weekend ski trip.

"The drive to and from the ski area is often a far more hazardous venture than the actual skiing," the safety authority said. "Most ski enthusiasts spend days planning a ski trip, buying and maintaining equipment, getting the proper clothing, and in making advance reservations. Yet so few take the little time necessary to see that their car is ready for the trip."

Pointing out that inadequate traction and reduced visibility are the principal hazards likely to be encountered at this time of year, Shipman recommended a pre-trip vehicle check-up, paying particular attention to the brakes, tires, lights, battery, heater - defroster, and windshield wipers.

"Be sure your tires have good treads. Conventional snow tires help, particularly in loosely-packed snow. Studded snow tires are good on icy pavements. Carry reinforced tire chains in your trunk in case of severe snow and ice conditions."

"Most important," concluded Shipman, "check your driving habits. We want skiers to come and enjoy our ski areas, and to have a safe and pleasant trip. And we want them to get their thrills on the slopes, not on the highways."

Manger Pies

The mince pie, a Christmas tradition, developed from mutton pies. World Book Encyclopedia says English cooks originally baked the pies in the shape of a manger.

Save Your Home From Merrymaking Mishaps

Deck the halls and whip up the wassail, the Holidays are happening! But whether they are happening in your home or to your home depends upon what precautions you take as you plan the merriment.

In the interest of saving your home from stained carpets, marred tabletops and a host of other dismal sights you might have to behold in early January, here are several good ideas:

Brighten your entry with a gay-colored rug remnant as a "boot park" or shoe wipe. These are sold in carpet departments at very low cost, bound and unbound. You can even tape a Christmas-color golden fringe around the edge to catch the eyes of your guests... and a lot of track-in dirt that will never get past your entry.

If you are hosting a cocktail party, group the gooey-type hors d'oeuvres (anything with dips or sauces, anything greasy or flakey) on a table in one room, preferably a side-area with a washable throw rug, or a sun porch with an easy-to-clean floor.

Carpet Protectors
The secret of keeping the rest of the carpeting from harm is this: do not provide little plates for them to load up and carry these snacks to other areas. The eating enthusiasts will stay within arm's reach of this oasis and drop their spills and crumbs where they are easily cleaned up. The light nibblers will drift to the carpeted areas where you have bowls of such harmless goodies as popcorn, candies and other dry snacks.

Give your furniture and tabletops all the protection you can. The arms and seats of clean, upholstered furniture can be given a do-it-yourself spray treatment of stain-repeller which prevents both watery or oily spills from soaking in. Usually, you can blot them up immediately without a trace (and without an embarrassing tragedy).

This same protection, incidentally, can be given your lovely new cocktail dress before you risk a splatter or a spill. Even the finest fabrics may be sprayed with a fluorochemical, and neither the color, the texture, or the "hand" of the material will be affected. It shields the dress not only from shrimp cocktail or cranberry juice stains, but from coffee stains as well.

Ashtrays, Coasters
The night of the party, put plenty of ash trays and glass coasters around to save tabletops. Many a permanent ring comes from a glass put down by a guest who is too engrossed in conversation to ask the host for a coaster. Choose ash trays that are large enough and deep enough to hold the "forgotten cigarette" if it is left to burn to the end. The kind with the clip-type holds are the best.

Some ash trays, as well as other Christmas decorations, can themselves be the scratchy culprits on your highly finished furniture. For the cut-glass punch bowl, the centerpiece with the unfinished wood bottom, the terracotta underdish for your poinsettia plant, or the bottom hinged creche, you can now get ready-made stick-on protectors.

Wax Catchers
Candles, one of the most beautiful home-traditions of the holidays, cause their share of damage with hot, dripping candle-wax. Sometimes the wax itself does less damage than the homeowner's attempt to scrape it off later. The best approach is to prevent it with wax-catchers such as large candle holders, metallic paper, rounds of bright felt or gold-sprayed paper plates.

Christmas festivities need not be home-wreckers. A few precautions taken, a small investment in some of the many new protective products for the home, and your house should be as lovely as ever when you blow out the last candle and pick up the last pine needle.

Help Fire Chief During Christmas
Looking forward to that traditional Christmas dinner? The fire chief probably has the same idea, reminds the American Insurance Association.

To help him have a quiet day, and at the same time make sure that you have a Merry Christmas, be sure your oven is clean and free of grease before you start cooking the Christmas turkey or roast.

A greasy oven is a fire hazard and could not only burn your Christmas dinner to a crisp, but cause a serious fire in your home.

What should you do if you have an open fire? Turn off the heat and leave the oven door closed until the fire is out. If necessary, call the Fire Department.

NO CHRISTMAS
A whole generation of New England children grew up without Christmas because Puritan leaders in Massachusetts banned Christmas celebrations from 1659 to 1681.

Extra Hours For New Year's Grog

LANING (AP)—New Year's Eve celebrants in Michigan will have to do without hard liquor until the New Year actually arrives this year.

But once the clock strikes midnight on Sunday, Dec. 31, bar patrons not only will be able to purchase hard liquor, but will have an extra two hours in which to drink it.

The State Liquor Control Commission has sent a directive to all retail licensees and enforcement agencies outlining the policy for New Year's Eve—which falls on a Sunday this year.

The directive pointed out that, in keeping with Michigan law, only beer and wine — but not hard liquor — may be sold on Sunday.

Under the law, bars normally may sell hard liquor from midnight Sunday until 2 a.m. Monday—the hour at which sales are halted. An extra half hour is allowed for clearing the premises, but bars must be closed by 2:30 a.m.

In view of the circumstances, the commission has ordered that the rule prohibiting sale and serving of alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises after 2 a.m. be suspended until 4 a.m.

The extension of hours of operation will be in effect throughout the state unless otherwise prohibited by local ordinance, the commission said. The extension does not, how-

BECAUSE CHRISTMAS is traditionally a winter wonderland, paintings such as "Winter Scene" by the Flemish artist Hendrik Avercamp seem to capture the mood and reflect the spirit of the holiday season. Avercamp devoted his talents to depicting the winter landscapes of Holland. This painting, which is in the Rijks Museum, Amsterdam, appears in the Grolier Book of Art, a 10-volume encyclopedia.

No Matter The Climate It's Christmas Around World

In Bethlehem, it's the rainy season.

In Hawaii, Santa Claus might arrive by boat, and Christmas could be celebrated on a sunny beach. In Australia, Christmas is a time for picnicking — it's summer "down under."

Even in Northern lands, December 25th does not always provide the pleasures of a "white Christmas."

In spite of the varying climates where Christmas is observed, and in spite of the frequent shortage of ice and snow at the appropriate time, the traditional image of Christmas is, and probably always will be, a wintry, snowy landscape — celebrated in song and story, pictured in countless paintings.

The countryside under a blanket of snow, the hillside drifted deep in white, the trees bent down with snow or crystal-bright with ice, the lakes, rivers and streams gleaming in ice-covered magnificence — these are favorite themes in holiday lore, and favorite dreams for all those who spend Christmas cozily among the conveniences of modern centrally-heated buildings and modern transportation.

The "winter wonderland" of ice and snow has been a frequent source of inspiration for artists. There's a wealth of winter landscape paintings that, although not directly associated with Christmas, seem to set the mood and reflect the spirit of the season.

In 16th and 17th century Holland, for instance, a whole tradition of landscape painting was devoted solely to depicting winter scenes — somewhat unusual since the winter weather of Holland is not especially cold.

For admirers of art and white Christmases alike, one of the definitive painters of winter scenes is Hendrik Avercamp.

Perhaps because he devoted his artistic talents exclusively to the winter landscape, Avercamp's paintings capture to perfection both the beauties and pleasures of winter. Bare branches of trees etch their patterns against expanses of ice, in contrast with the cozy cottages and, on the ice, the merry skaters, for an ideal blending of the cold weather and warm spirit of a winter holiday.

Of Avercamp's personal history, little is known. Records show that he was baptized in Amsterdam in January 1585, and buried at Kampen in 1634. His painting was influenced by the Flemish landscape tradition and particularly by Pieter Bruegel the Elder — a painter whose fascination with the winter scene did much to shape his landscape style.

The snow-covered hillsides seen in the work of the elder Pieter Bruegel contrast strangely with the flat, icy terrain of his native Holland. The explanation is to be found in his travels which took him to mountainous lands.

Bruegel became a master in the Antwerp painters' guild in 1551, and shortly afterward journeyed to France and Italy, says the Grolier Book of Art.

In 1554 he returned from Rome to the Netherlands, re-crossing the Alps on his way. The mountains and scenery of Italy made an immense impression on him, as reflected in the drawings he made at the time.

More than the "contemporary" Italian art, those mountainous vistas influenced his landscape style — and ultimately inspired Avercamp and other Flemish painters of the ever-wonderful winter scene.

Boxing Day

Boxing Day, celebrated in England the first weekday after Christmas, may have received its name from the custom of giving Christmas boxes on that day to tradesmen, servants, lamplighters, postmen and others. Nowadays, World Book notes, many families give small amounts of money instead of boxes.

The American flag has been changed four times since 1900 — in 1907, 1912, 1959 and 1960.

Message For Ages

That small, faint voice you may have heard above the racket of the cash registers during the Christmas shopping rush was that of an infant hoping to be noticed amid the hurrying crowds.

Most people, if they listened, recognized the voice as that of the Christ Child, the Savior. His birth, His mission on the earth is what Christmas is all about.

For many others — of different religious persuasion, or lesser persuasion, or no persuasion — the voice may have had a different source.

But it was and is present nonetheless, and the message it speaks is the same for all men.

It is a message that echoes across the ages each year at this season — a message of hope, of belief in the essential worth of mankind, a rebounding faith that despite all the sorrow men visit upon themselves they are learning little by little how to live in peace with one another.

It is a message that has been relayed from one disillusioned, frustrated, yet hopeful, generation to another, and will go on being relayed until the allotted time for man on this planet runs out.

Man today has quite a bit to say about how long or short that time will be. For in this century he has discovered the power that can either reduce civilization to savagery, if not wipe it out altogether, or elevate it to heights undreamed of.

Yet it is not that power that needs controlling. It is man himself, just as it has always been.

That is why the Christmas message is as live and pertinent and hope-refreshing today as it was when it was first heard 2,000 years ago.

There CAN be peace on earth, if men will but have good will. There ARE tidings of great joy, if men will but unclog their ears of the noise and confusion they surround themselves with.

We will listen, for a time. For a brief moment, we will believe.

Then we will forget. We will carefully store away the precious, perishable joy of the holiday and again put on the tired old cynicism and selfishness of the everyday world.

We will forget Christmas — until another year, when its undying message comes ringing back again, as new and fresh and real as ever.

Red China Is Real Key To Viet Peace

By LEON DENNEN
NEW YORK (NEA) — Since the defeat of the Nazis in 1945, peace and war have been the result as much of accident as of deliberate acts of policy.

But improvisation in foreign affairs is a growing danger at a time when the real enemy is chaos. The world faces a situation in which mankind's ability to destroy itself is so potent that a conscious effort must be made to avoid war and keep the peace.

Yet there is much wishful thinking and even unreality in the escalating American debate on Vietnam. President Johnson has made it repeatedly clear that there can be no "military solution" to the problems of Southeast Asia. But he believes that only military power could make possible a "political solution" in Vietnam.

The President's critics seem convinced that if the United States would stop bombing North Vietnam and de-escalate the war, Hanoi's Communist leaders might agree to peace talks.

The credentials of Johnson's vocal and articulate opponents are certainly impressive. They include Republican politicians who smell victory in the 1968 elections, unhappy Democratic senators, "friendly" diplomats and assorted professors, journalists and clergymen.

For one reason or another, they all seek a way out of the terrible Vietnamese dilemma. But in their effort to end the tragic conflict they find themselves in the unhappy position of the matchmaker who tried to arrange a wedding without a bridegroom. In this case the bridegroom is, of course, Red China.

World stability rested in the past on the balance of nuclear terror of the United States and Russia. Today, whether we like it or not, China has emerged as a third superpower which holds the key to war or peace in Southeast Asia.

In the U. S. State Department's view, the Chinese are bad Communists and the Russians are good Communists. But in international affairs it is perilous to ignore hard facts.

The hard fact is that without China's consent North Vietnam will not dare to engage in peace negotiations with the United States. The road to peace in Vietnam lies through Peking.

This, among others, is the conclusion of a panel of clear-thinking American businessmen, scholars and former government officials headed by Frederick S. Bebe, chairman of the Washington Post Co.

In the panel's view, China's test explosion of a hydrogen bomb makes it more urgent than ever for the United States to support Peking's membership in the United Nations.

The confusion and change currently under way in China, the panel said, "create an impelling need for the world outside to make clear to any emergent Chinese leadership that it can, if it chooses, make a new start toward orderly participation in the United Nations and world affairs."

This means a "two-China" policy since the United States cannot turn its back on Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist government in Taiwan.

But will Peking agree to such a solution? Does Mao Tse-tung really want to join the United Nations? There is no way of knowing for sure.

But to stop the killing in Vietnam the admission of Red China into the U. N. is a risk well worth taking. It is a diplomatic avenue that should be explored.

If there is to be peace, the United States and the international community must have the will to prevent a great nation like China from becoming a nuclear outlaw.

No illusion must blur the hard truth: Without the consent and active participation of Red China there can be no permanent political solution in Southeast Asia.

The Story of Christmas

By DAVID POLING

Home is the most powerful emotion when people think about Christmas. The big question asked in New York, Los Angeles and Paris is, "Are you going home for Christmas?" In a year when young men are far away from home in the Army or the Peace Corps, Christmas again becomes the poignant and painful season of separation.

But think about this: Jesus Christ was born away from home. When Mary brought Jesus into the world they were en route to Bethlehem. St. Luke tells us about the taxation procedure that sent Joseph from Nazareth to Bethlehem to be "enrolled." This was his home city and yet the Holy Family was unable to find accommodations for the birth of the Christ Child, finding shelter in a primitive barn.

Consider this: Everyone included in the Christmas story was away from home. The shepherds who came to honor the birth of Christ did some traveling. The Wise Men crossed mountains and valleys and rivers to greet this newborn King. Christmas and the coming of Christ did not mean homecoming or family reunions as much as it illustrated the dramatic appearance of God's love and promise to a frightened and weary world.

Christmas is really the deep and abiding feeling in your life that comes from the birth of Christ. Christmas is a person and not a place.

Now if Christmas is not confined to homecoming, not limited to the family circle nor hampered by a geographic togetherness, then a rich and powerful meaning has come into our lives. Wherever we are, God's gift through His Son becomes a refueling and renewing experience in every heart that responds to the hope and promise of this birth.

Gilbert Highet reminds us that George Washington kept one of the most complete diaries of any person during colonial days in America. His journal, which spans a period of almost 40 years, seems to find its highlights around Christmas. And for Washington, many Christmas were spent far from home and family.

For instance, in 1751, at the age of 19, he spent Christmas at sea, taking his brother Lawrence to the island of Barbados. His ailing brother was on the verge of collapse and George became his escort and nurse as they wintered in a more temperate climate.

At the age of 21, Washington spied out the French forts along the Ohio River. He celebrated Christmas by fording the Allegheny River, which was swollen with ice, in an effort to escape from the French and Indians who stalked this young patriot.

Throughout his life, the man who loved Mount Vernon, family and home was to be denied them so often. We think of his Christmas attack on Trenton and the wintry Yule at Valley Forge the following year.

In the last diary entry that he made, on Christmas, 1798, Washington wrote with a vision of all the years that had been filled with hardship, treachery, victory and illness these lines: "It is not necessary to be brave or clever or generous or beloved or even happy. It is necessary simply to do one's duty. All else flows from that."

At Christmas, no one was home, but everyone doing their duty. Joseph was on his way to pay his taxes. The shepherds were watching their sheep. The Wise Men were following the scholar's road of study and travel. God revealed Himself to all of these and especially to Mary, the world's first refugee.

Chesterton was right. When we have found the Person, then we will be in the right place. "To an open house in the evening. 'Home shall men come. To an older place than Eden. And a taller town than Rome. To the end of the way of the wondering star. To the place where God was homeless. And all men art at home.' (The Rev. Poling is associate editor of the Christian Herald.)

Ecumenism Is Much More Than Respectability

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

I have three brothers and the four of us enjoy the infrequent reunions when we can recount the escapades of growing up. Scattered in various parts of the country, we try to find at least an annual moment when we can see each other. Why should anyone think it extraordinary if four brothers enjoy seeing one another and sharing their experiences? Why praise brothers for being brothers?

In the city in which I live eight pastors, Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Jewish—have been meeting, sharing a fellowship and sponsoring a whole host of interfaith activities. People watching, frequently comment on the excellence of this fellowship, as though it were necessary to praise brothers for being brothers.

New Danger

This is the illustration of the danger now being confronted by the bold ecumenical movement. When Pope John threw open the windows for fresh breezes to course through the Christian world, it was possible for that which had been only a Protestant fellowship to become a more truly ecumenical brotherhood. What has happened in recent years has erupted with revolutionary swiftness and encouraging climax.

Just here is the danger. Our problem is that we shall settle for respectability, with just being nice to one another as an ultimate goal instead of a preliminary step. The work we are sent to do is to witness in the world where the problems are tougher than ever.

With Bravery

List some of the dangers confronting mankind and they add up to the presence of war, the loss of coexistence between nations, a growing gulf between the "haves" and the "have-nots," the horrible poverty among so many peoples and the unabated trend toward overpopulation. Add to these confusing and threatening problems, the indifference and the amoral selfishness and the broad outlines of some of mankind's most fearful problems are indicated.

It's a time to tackle these with imagination, with risk and with bravery. The critics of the churches have been saying that not enough of us are willing to do this. And they may be right. Certainly, we will not solve problems by shying away from them. As brothers we are meant to recognize a larger brotherhood.

It's a time to accept brotherhood as natural and then be disturbed enough by what we see around us to work together to meet the needs and yearnings of mankind. Ecumenical brotherhood is only a necessary step in the right direction.

That is best achieved by a common witness that doesn't settle for a private fellowship but struggles together for the larger familyhood.

"Quotes"

There is another kind of ghetto — an interior ghetto of the mind where he seal off parts of democracy that don't suit us, where we box off our obligations to justice and shut out our commitments to fairness. This ghetto of the mind is no less stinking and rotten than the ghetto of the city. — Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Ann Landers Terrible Price For Groovy Experience

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the LSD user caused a lot of talk on our campus. I heard some kids say, "That settles it for me." Can you use one more letter that might "settle it" for some others?

I'm a 20-year-old college student (male) who thought it might be a groovy experience to "expand my mind." I smoked a couple of joints (marijuana) and felt pretty good after the pot experience. The next step for me was LSD. I figured if pot made me high, LSD would really zoom me out of this world. You wouldn't believe how easy it is to get LSD around here.

My first trip was fair but my second trip was bad — very bad. My third trip was agony. It took me three days to figure out who I was and where I was. That was two months ago and I'm far from normal as I write this letter.

In a crowd (study halls are crowded) I still get that uptight feeling. Don't ask me what I'm afraid of. I don't know. A casual conversation usually turns into a heated argument. When anyone disagrees with me I become furious. Later I am filled with remorse and I get awfully depressed.

During these depressions all my character defects loom up in exaggerated form to plague me. I feel like the biggest liar, the laziest, most useless, rottenest person on earth. I get to thinking maybe I don't deserve to live and suicide seems like the sure way to take me out of my misery. Then a voice that sounds like God keeps saying, "You'll come out of this. Fight back." So I keep fighting.

I am luckier than most kids. My parents are great and they have been very understanding. I am under psychiatric care and I know now that one day I'll make it back.

I hope you will print my letter, Ann, and give me the opportunity to help some other stupid kid to learn for nothing what nearly cost me my life. — FX HIPPIE

Dear Ex-Hippy: Here's your letter and thanks for writing it. Now, may I add a word?

To a rubber bridge player, 10 points means nothing at all. Once in awhile, if he is playing for money and scoring a rubber to the nearest hundred, it may mean an extra point, but, in all, he pays no attention to such trifles.

To a duplicate player it may mean the difference between a top score and an average, and many duplicate players will play a slam in no-trump in an effort to get the extra 10 points.

South was one of that type. He decided that he would make just as many tricks at no-trump as at hearts and that he wanted those 10 points.

South was right from the first standpoint. The hand did produce as many tricks at no-trump and when West failed to cash his ace of spades at trick one, South made a grand slam and got the top score he was trying for.

From a practical standpoint it turned out that his six no-trump call was totally unnecessary. It seems that at all other tables, North checked for aces with four no-trump and then, carried away by his own 20 points, bid the six no-trump himself.

Invariably, East led a spade. Some North players put in the 10 spot and managed to get out for down one. A couple of hardy souls went up with the king in the hope that East had underled an ace and went down three.

We take no stand on South's final bid of six no-trump, but we do take a real stand in favor of North's bidding. North was Roger Stern, the newly elected president of the Greater New York Bridge Association, and Roger was well-aware that a spade would be led if he were declarer and a spade lead might be disastrous. Furthermore, he knew that Paul Trent, his partner, was well-aware of all duplicate potentials.

Fools Fail In Toy Business

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEW YORK — (NEA) — There are many fools but no prophets in the toy industry. These are the revealing words of Chicago-based toy designer Marvin Glass. In 26 years Glass and his staff turned out 300 to 400 items.

In an industry characterized as volatile by some, Glass is the first to admit that novelties like a Hoola Hoop may make millions but imprudent gimmick makers go down the drain faster now than in the dark ages of the toy industry. He refers to the era before companies began to pour millions of dollars into television advertising of toys.

Manufacturers are more cautious. Glass points out. And well they might be in a computer-oriented age that relies upon marketing and merchandising techniques that kill seat-of-the-pants designing.

The increase in sales of toys and games to help us escape is due only in part to more people to play with them.

"We have a choice as adults, for example," Glass says, "to watch television, drink beer or play games." According to sales figures Americans are doing more of all three.

Tell Baby Sitter Of Emergencies

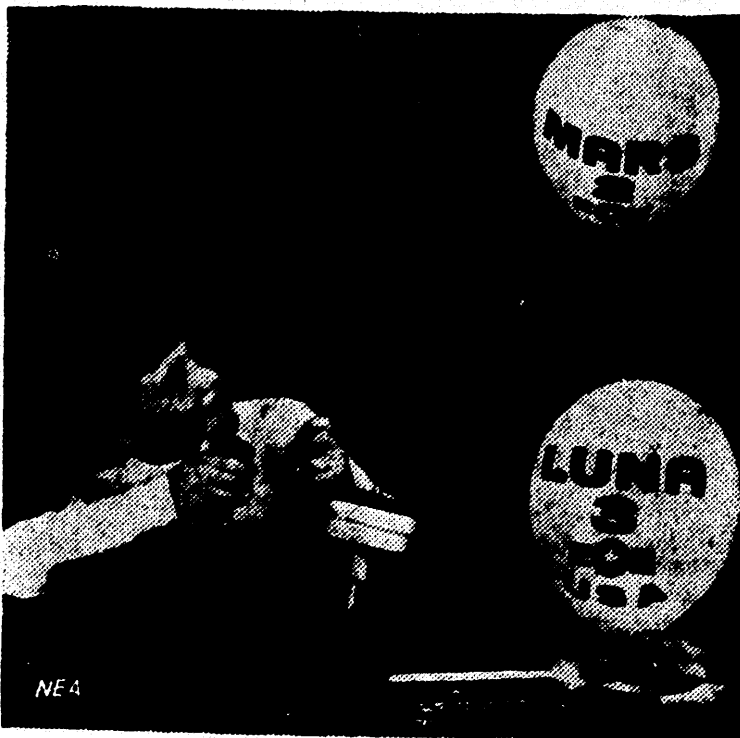

Are you planning to employ a babysitter during the holidays?

If so, be sure the sitter knows what to do in case of fire.

Make sure the sitter knows that in case of fire she is to get all of the children out of the house quickly.

Under no circumstances should she and the children re-enter the building.

Keeping the children together, she should go to a neighbor's home and ask the neighbor to call the fire department.

SPACE AGE TOY provides indoor exploits to the moon or Mars. Developed to operate on a cushion of air, the toy keeps pace with real life developments.

Throw in the needs of tots to express themselves in play and the output of educational and entertaining items means an industry that expects approximately $2½ billion in sales this year. This is spread among 1,500 toy, game and decoration manufacturers.

Whatever the ultimate money outlay for toys and games by that family with 2½ statistical children, the behind-the-scenes activity of designing and making toys involves security precautions worthy of Thrush, Uncle or the CIA.

Secrecy shrouds the birth of a new gun, doll, hot rod car or little girl's oven that really bakes. A trip to the world's largest single toy manufacturing plant in Elizabeth, N.J., didn't include the clanging of steel doors, fingerprinting or the taking of an oath. It did include a peek behind locked doors into the restricted zone of the model shops referred to by their inmates as "the old people's home," the passing of signs that read "Absolutely No Admittance Beyond This Point" and glimpses of black velvet draped over tables and shelves.

A few years ago Orenstein sold the company to Deluxe Reading for $2 million but continued to run the show. Through success of Baby Boo, Baby Magic, Playmobile and Johnny Eagle, Orenstein bought the company back last year for $49 million. It is among the top six with Mattel the largest toy manufacturer with $150 million in sales.

These figures alone explain why a toy manufacturer insists on black velvet secrecy. Their models are as jealously guarded as Balenciaga before a Paris showing or the unveiling of a new Ford.

The investment for a single $5 item may be $200,000. But with a $20 million seller like the Suzy Homemaker line it is worth it.

About 95 per cent of Deluxe Toy production is in plastic and it was fascinating to stroll by the injection mold machines, wend through other sections of the plant to see the assembly steps. During peak production the company will employ 8,000 with a tapered layoff as Christmas nears. Christmas Eve means a vacation for thousands of employees but Francis points out that a high percentage of the employees are housewives "who like a few weeks or months off anyway."

Scotch Pine Is Favorite Tree

Michigan and eight other states produce 43 per cent of the 33 million trees grown in the United States. Churches, businesses and community centers will use about 11 per cent of these trees.

Balsam was the unchallenged favorite for Christmas trees until 1955 when the Douglas fir became the leader. Now public taste is shifting to the long needed trees like the Scotch pine. In 1948 less than a million Scotch pines were sold compared to 6½ million balsams.

Today, the number one favorite Scotch pine accounts for 9 million trees or 27 per cent of the Christmas tree sales. Other rankings in order are: Douglas fir, 7 million; Balsam, 4.2 million; Eastern Redcedar, 2.2 million; red pine, 2 million with miscellaneous species such as black spruce accounting for the remainder.

Private, taxpaying forestlands grow 91 per cent of the trees. About 43 per cent are grown on farms. The other 48 per cent come from nonfarm land such as industrial forests, private Tree Farms, and hobbyists' lands. Nine per cent of our trees come from the national forests or state and county lands.

In 1964, we imported 7.5 million trees from Canada. This is down from a high of 12 million trees in peak years. Now, 81 per cent of the Christmas trees marketed are moved by truck because the tree plantations are closer to the key markets.

The retail value of the 41 million fresh Christmas trees sold in 1964 was $114.6 million with $51 million for the wholesalers and $27.8 million for the growers.

Estimates for the number of fresh trees to be sold in 1967 range from 45 to 47 million trees. Fewer trees will be coming from western and northern wilds (both managed Tree Farms and unmanaged forests) and more will be coming from farm plantation Tree Farms found in the eastern half of the nation.

Bird Count To Be Yule Event

More than 10,000 qualified bird-watchers will take to the field this year in the 68th annual Christmas Bird Count. The count is a unique scientific venture, a carefully conducted census that provides year-after-year data on the species, range and numbers of birds in North America.

The growing popularity of the event has proved to be a problem as well as a source of gratification to its sponsor, the National Audubon Society. So many more qualified ornithologists are taking part, so many more areas covered and, consequently, so many more birds reported, that complication has become a job of major proportions.

Teams of amateur and professional ornithologists have been organized in more than 850 "count areas," each area bounded by a 15-mile diameter circle that does not overlap any other. The dates this year are Dec. 20 through Jan. 1; in each area the counters may pick, at their convenience, any one full day of this period to make their count.

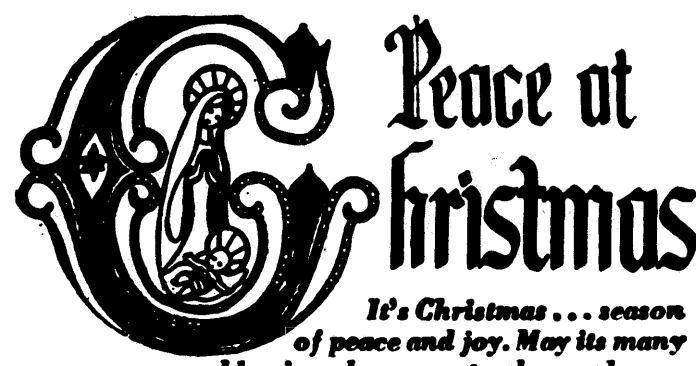

On the appointed day the teams — usually several teams subdivide a count area — comb the hills, swamps, beaches, fields and backyard bird feeders to see what they can find. If the area is, say, on the coast of Maine, perhaps 50 or 60 different species will be found; in southern Florida or California, 150 or even 200 species might be seen. And within each species the area count might

Christmas Card Custom Started In London: 1843

The letter carrier, his back bent beneath a bulging bag of Christmas cards, may feel that what Sherman said about war might equally be said about Christmas.

But it wasn't always that way. People didn't exchange Christmas cards until relatively recent times. The first specially designed Christmas card is believed to have been printed by a London company and placed on sale in 1843.

Charles Goodall & Sons of London began printing and selling Christmas cards on a wide scale in 1862. World Book Encyclopedia says, and printed cards soon became as popular as the handwritten personal notes that people had exchanged earlier.

Louis Prang, a Boston lithographer, began printing multi-colored Christmas cards in the 1860's and marketed them in Europe. By 1875 he was selling them in the United States. And that's how it began.

Snowmobile Brings New Mobility To Winter Sport

By LEE SMITH

Consider what profound changes in the wildlife of America have been produced by the inventions of man, starting with axe and plow. Now another has been added.

The greatest change, of course, have come about through the combination of the automobile and improved roads. Norman H. Hill, former conservation commissioner and long-time publisher of the Sault Ste. Marie Evening News, recalls an era when daring motorists would set out from the Soo for Manistique, Escanaba. Even for such a distant destination as Marquette. They would be days and nights on the road. Cars would get stuck in sand, in mud and on steep hills. Motorists would go hungry, maybe even thirsty and sleep with their clothes on.

An old-timer easily remembers an era when most of the northern third of the Lower Peninsula and all but a very small percentage of the Upper Peninsula could be reached only on foot or by a sturdy team and a stout wagon. There were sizeable areas free of any human presence, year after year, except for a possible trapper.

Residents of the Upper Peninsula used to chortle over the prospect of a heavy snowfall trapping the deer hunters who had the nerve to drive up from "down below." Sure enough, the snowfall came, cars were abandoned. (There were reports of snowed-in cars being sold for $25 to anyone who would try to get them out.)

But they came back, more and more of them came back, until there is now no quarter section of northern Michigan woodland that isn't visited by hunters.

A memory. Two deer hunters camped in the west end of Mackinac County. They often separated for the day, and if one of them heard a shot he could be sure that it was fired by his partner. If one of them came on a man track he knew it was the footprint of his friend. There was a two-deer daily limit — or maybe it was three — bucks, does, fawns — but deer was not abundant. The peak population came after the hardwood was cut and lush second-growth took its place.

Consider the impact of the outboard motor. There used to be fishermen and duck hunters who thought nothing of rowing, paddling, punting a skiff for mile after mile, but that breed is extinct. It left a legend — at the St. Clair Flats a guide — with a big cabin cruiser for charter — is still called a "hunter."

We will skip the bush plane, because it does not figure largely in Michigan sport. On Isle

Royale the intensive study of moose, wolves and other wildlife, directed by Dr. Durward S. Allen of Purdue University, is greatly facilitated by the expert flying of Minnesota pilot, Don Murray. The Allen studies might be termed an elevated form of sport. Biologists on the Allen team track and photograph wolves and moose from the air.

Until recently there have been, during mid-winter, sections of Michigan that were wilderness. A low-flying plane would see wolf tracks. No cars, no humans, no man tracks.

But not any more. A new mechanism has been added. Snowmobile is one name for it; snow-cruiser, sno-jet, ski-doo, ski-dadler.

The thing glides at high speed anywhere there is a reasonable layer of snow. While millions are being spent to send adventurous young men to the moon, the owner of a snowmobile plots an expedition that will take him to an uncharted rabbit swamp, 17 miles north and west of Mink Lake, which is two miles south of County Road 109.

It means that ice fishing can be tried on remote Lake Superior bays — also that a beaver poacher can expect to get beyond reach of a determined conservation officer, unless the officer also rides a snowmobile.

There is the Michigan Snowmobile Association, publishing Michigan's "snow mag," the Snowmobiler. There are projects, a snow safari on Grand Island, in Munising Bay; "A Long Thrilling Trip" — Ironwood to the Soo in four days. It is co-educational. Gals go along.

Should romantic old-timers resent the snowmobile? Nope. It is simply a part of an historic sequence that includes axe, plow, gun, railroad, internal combustion engine, automobile, airplane and various other items that man has devised to aid him in his endless war on the wilderness.

FIRE SAFETY TIP

Matches should be kept out of reach of small children, says the American Insurance Association.

Christmas Lights Should Be Checked

If you have outside Christmas decorations with electric lights this Christmas season be careful to use only heavy-duty strings of lights made for outside lighting, says the American Insurance Association.

Rain or snow can cause short circuits in strings of lights not specifically made for outside use, the Association emphasizes.

If you are using lights held over from last year, check them to be sure they are in good operating condition.

Strings of lights with frayed wiring or faulty connections should be discarded and new ones purchased.

A GOOD TIP

ADDED CANDLES TO TREE

Martin Luther is credited with first adorning a tree with candles at Christmastime, in simulation of an evergreen shimmering with starlit snow. Christmas trees were confined to the Rhine country until 1700 and the custom is believed to have crossed the Atlantic with Hessian mercenaries during the American Revolution.

Santa Claus is here! His pack is brimming with gifts of joy and laughter . . . gifts of happy hours . . . gifts of friendship and good will. We would like to add our warmest thanks to you, our valued customers, for your kind patronage. From jolly old St. Nick and us, Merry Christmas.
